TROOPS SEALED
OFF IN NORTH

BY W. W. HEICHER
London, Sunday, Sept. 24 (AP)—Russian troops racing across Estonia reached the west coast yesterday, capturing the port of Parnu on the Gulf of Riga and sealing off thousands of Germans in a week-old offensive which is estimated to have cost the enemy eight divisions, or 80,000 men.

The Red army aided by an Estonian corps captured Parnu in another two-mile-an-hour advance from Palde, 50 miles to the northeast, and its fall cut the land escape routes for thousands of a bewildered foe caught between Parnu and Tallinn, captured Estonian capital 72 miles to the north.

Evacuation Ships Sunk
At sea Red naval planes pursued some German ships which escaped from Tallinn with troops aboard. During Friday the Soviet airmen sank 11 of these evacuation vessels, and apparently thousands of Germans perished in the Gulf of Finland.

The fall of Riga, Latvian capital 97 miles south of Parnu, appeared imminent as four powerful Soviet armies pressed the speedy cleanup of Estonia and Latvia in sensational gains. Some Russian units were fighting in Riga's outer southern defenses, and Red artillery was laying down barrages on Nazi positions in the strategic city.

Front Shortened
The Soviet victories in Estonia and Latvia were regarded merely as the forerunner of great attacks on East Prussia, in Poland and on Hungary. They shortened the front by more than 120 miles, gave the Red fleet new bases and the air force fields from which the Russians can control two-thirds of the Baltic Sea.

Premier-Marshals Joseph Stalin in an order of the day announced the capture of Parnu, Estonia's second port, a few hours after Berlin said that the Red army had begun a "major attack" near the Hungarian-annexed Transylvanian capital of Cluj aimed at trapping all Axis troops in eastern Hungary and Slovakia.

Moscow dispatches also said that an entry into pre-war Hungary was imminent, and an unconfirmed French radio broadcast said the Red Army already had crossed the Hungarian border and was "advancing in the direction of Budapest," Magyar capital.

Parolee Is Slain
At Detroit After
Entry Into House

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—Fleeing from a house in St. Joseph Street shortly before daylight today a man identified by police as Earl Metcalf, 36, a parolee from the State Prison of Southern Michigan, was killed in a hall of rifle fire by Willie Baron, occupant of the house.

Baron, 25, told police he and his wife, Jennie, 26, were awakened when the man entered the house through a bathroom window. He said he fired several shots from a revolver and as the intruder jumped to the ground seized a rifle and fired at him as he ran. Four of the shots struck Metcalf in the back.

Detective John Orlikowski, who identified Metcalf, said he had a record of 10 arrests of larceny and breaking and entering charges.

Reconversion Task
To Bring Shakeup
In Capital Family

BY STERLING F. GREEN

Washington, Sept. 23. (AP)—A prospect of an early presidential signature—perhaps next week—on the reconversion and war surplus bills stirred speculation today on Mr. Roosevelt's choice of new faces in the high official family. Fred M. Vinson, Donald M. Nelson, Harold D. Smith and Chester Bowles have been mentioned among possibilities for the proposed No. 1 demobilization job, director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. Director James F. Byrnes has declared his intention to step out of the government when his Office of War Mobilization becomes OWMR.

Vinson, now director of the Office of Economic Stabilization, appears to have the inside track if Mr. Roosevelt decides simply to promote the next in line of the executive hierarchy. His is the job from which Byrnes advanced.

Nelson Tired Out
Nelson, now enroute home from a presidential mission to China, has indicated a desire to step out of his stormy War Production board chairmanship, leaving the WPB's role in industrial demobilization to a younger man—who might turn out to be J. A. Krug, 36, now firmly running WPB as acting chairman.

Smith, director of the Bureau of the Budget, entered the running because the bill would give OWMR power to demobilize the government as well as the industrial economy. The president this week assigned the starting of that job to Smith.

If Vinson were chosen, his job in OES would need filling. Mr. Bowles—who has won presidential praise for his record as price administrator—the first in regular line of succession.

But the report persists that Bowles' friends think him qualified for the key job, director of the OWMR.

Some officials predict that both the reconversion and the surplus disposal measures will be signed as early as next week and the new officials named promptly. Mr. Roosevelt is said to be not wholly happy with the reconversion bill but the possibility of an early German collapse has put pressure on preparations for peace.

FINNISH TROOPS

To Withdraw; Soviet Press Critical

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—Finnish reinforcements rushing 300 miles north of Helsinki have begun attacking German troops dug in on the Olunjoki-Oulujarvi line across the center of Finland, the Helsinki radio announced tonight.

"Since it has become clear that German troops in northern Finland have not withdrawn within the stipulated time from Finnish territory necessary measures have been taken," the announcement said.

The broadcast said that strong German detachments had occupied the defensive line running across Finland from Oulu port at the northeastern end of the Gulf of Bothnia, and also were entrenched north of there after failing to quit the country by Sept. 15, the time stipulated in the Finnish-Russian armistice.

Finnish troops sent northward as reinforcements "have gone into to attack," the announcement said, and reached Ristijarvi and Hyrynsalmi, two small villages a few miles northeast of the water defenses of Oulujarvi.

The Soviet press has been very critical of Finland in the past few days, accusing it of taking a lukewarm attitude toward the Germans and demanding that the government enforce the armistice regulations.

Clare Mixes Acting
In Campaign Speech

Norfolk, Conn., Sept. 23 (AP)—Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.) mixed a bit of acting with her speaking tonight at the rally addressed by Governor John W. Bricker, the Republican vice presidential nominee.

"Stalin," said Mrs. Luce, noted as a playwright long before she entered politics, "stands for this." She raised a clenched fist. "Hitler stands for this." She gave the Nazi salute. "Churchill, God bless him, stands for this."

She raised two fingers to form a V, symbol of victory. "And Roosevelt stands for this." The crowd roared with laughter as she put her index into her mouth to wet it and then raised it into the air as one seeking to learn how the wind was blowing.

REICH'S FUTURE
CAUSES DISPUTEMorgenthau Proposes To Split Nation Up Into Small Farms

BY JOHN HIGHTOWER

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt's cabinet committee on German peace policy has split wide open, it was learned today, over a plan sponsored by Treasury Secretary Morgenthau for completely destroying Germany as a modern industrial state and converting it into an agricultural country of small farms.

Morgenthau came away from the conference with the impression that Churchill found his proposals acceptable, especially since Eden is reported to have held somewhat similar views.

What Premier Stalin plans with respect to Germany apparently still is not known here. Morgenthau based his plan on three assumptions with respect to Russia: (a) Russia wants East Prussia and most of Silesia to go to Poland to offset Poland's loss of eastern territory to the Soviet Union; (b) Russia wants German labor battalions put to work on the Soviet Union reconstruction; (c) with her own huge needs for manpower, Russia is not interested in prolonged military occupation of Germany and would be willing to have Britain, the United States and other Allies countries do the job.

British tanks and infantry and the American sky-troops who fought through stand-and-die resistance apparently sent their patrols across the river at the Arnheim bridge. A link-up in force would signalize a great Allied victory on the Ruhr valley route to Berlin.

Their long, thin line of supply was once more intact, for 30 miles south of this critical front British forces rushed up and chased away SS (elite guard) troops and 200 tanks who had slashed across the highway at the Dutch village of Veghel.

Tank Battle Rages
Supreme headquarters, which had described the Arnheim positions as "critical" only Friday, breathed more easily and from the commander of the British division in Arnheim came word that after six days of isolation "morale is high—we will hold out."

Rain and thick clouds again hampered air support and reinforcement, but rocket-firing Typhoons in great strength helped smash the German loose from their stranglehold on the life line at Veghel.

En route to the north branch of the Rhine, which winds along the southern suburbs of Arnheim, the British and Americans made a union with hard-pressed Polish forces.

It was announced also that Mitchell bombers had found the Italian cruiser Taranto at the port of La Spezia and left her burning fiercely from three attacks. The 3,184-ton vessel was in a position to be used as block ship.

From Cairo it was announced that the RAF set fire to a 1,000-ton vessel at Samos Island in the continuing campaign to hamper or prevent German evacuation of the Aegean Islands.

In Germany fires still burned in the Kassel and Munich industrial areas as results of Friday's heavy attacks by 1,200 American heavy bombers from the south and west.

Jungle Army Gains
In Drive On Tiddim

BY CHARLES A. GRUMICH

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Sept. 23 (AP)—Jungle fighters of the British 14th army have driven to a point just seven miles above the important Japanese base of Tiddim in Burma, capturing the town of Tongzang and chasing a cut-off Japanese rear guard into the jungle. Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

After taking Tongzang, which is 15 miles above Tiddim on the main road southward from Imphal, troops of the 14th pushed southward another eight miles, headquarters announced. This put the Allied force 32 miles inside Burma in its drive toward Tiddim, the main objective in the present phase of the Chin hills offensive.

TROOPS STILL IN BAD SITUATION

BY ERNEST AGNEW

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Sept. 23 (AP)—British Second army patrols tonight forged a tenuous link with units of the "lost division" of airborne troops in the Arnheim sector in Holland, and thousands of British and American glider troops, with large amounts of supplies, were flown in despite strong opposition to reinforce Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's hard-slugging rescue troops.

A late front dispatch said the situation in the Arnheim sector remained serious, even as the Second army, after a bloody six-mile relief march, hurled shells across the river into enemy lines ringing the valley just a quarter of a mile away from the hard-won British position on the north bank of the Rhine.

Rain Stalls Armies
The British advance was punched out through enemy strength, and extremely heavy fighting continued in the whole sector tonight.

To the south, U. S. Third army armor churned forward through a sea of mud in a six-mile push, capturing Burville, six miles north of Baccarat and about 30 miles east of Nancy. The remainder of the Third army front was stalled by rain and strong Nazi resistance.

The navy communique also told of widespread American aerial strikes against other Japanese island bases.

The battling in the Palau Islands, chief Japanese barrier protecting the eastern approach to the Philippines, and the recent carrier plane raids on the Manila area, were underscored by a Japanese radio broadcast Saturday stating that the Philippine puppet government had declared war on the United States and Britain.

American patrol vessels sighted and tore into seven Japanese barges Friday in a narrow channel separating Peleliu and Ngesebus Islands. One barge was sunk. The others, driven onto Peleliu beaches, were destroyed by naval gunfire and bombing and strafing planes. It was not known whether the Japanese were attempting to reinforce their Peleliu defenders or to evacuate survivors of the bloody battling with the Marines.

The navy communique said Japanese dead on Peleliu through Friday reached a total of 7,020 out of an estimated original garrison of 10,000. The enemy dead on Angaur, already conquered by American soldiers of the Wildcat division, totaled 950. Angaur is six miles southwest of Peleliu.

BY HENRY B. JAMESON

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—American planes swarmed out across the channel from Britain today as the German radio sounded alarms against renewed two-way poundings of the Reich from the west and south.

The Mediterranean-based forces, which have been hitting Hungary and Yugoslavia daily, struck in medium strength at industrial targets in Sudetenland, Rome announced, and also hit railway yards in southern Austria and seven bridges in northeastern Italy.

It was announced also that Mitchell bombers had found the Italian cruiser Taranto at the port of La Spezia and left her burning fiercely from three attacks. The 3,184-ton vessel was in a position to be used as block ship.

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—Col. Alfred H. Johnson, district supervisor of the Army Air Forces air technical service command, announced today 1,178 production employees of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. would be laid off in a cutback due to a change in requirements for B-17 bombers.

War Manpower commission officials said that approximately 95 per cent of those laid off would be placed immediately in other jobs.

Marines Control
Three-Fourths Of Strategic Peleliu

BY VERN HAUGLAND

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Sept. 23. (AP)—Punching out new gains on Japanese strategic Peleliu in the Palau Islands, 515 miles east of the Philippines, American Marines were reported by fleet headquarters today to have battled their way northward a thousand or more yards Friday and engulfed the west coast village of Garekoru. The leathernecks now control about three-fourths of the island.

As the Yank conquest of Peleliu quickened, even in the face of furious Japanese resistance, other Marines occupied a small unnamed island off the east coast, a thousand yards north of American-held Ngabed.

Puppets Declare War
The navy communique also told of widespread American aerial strikes against other Japanese island bases.

GOP ORATORS
CALLED FAKES
BY ROOSEVELTPRESIDENT REPLIES TO CRITICISM OF
GOV. DEWEY

BY HOWARD W. FLIEGER

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt opened his fourth term campaign tonight with a hard hitting speech accusing the Republican opposition of attempting to claim credit for the new deal. He charged that GOP orators were guilty of "the most obvious common or garden variety of fraud."

Speaking before the AFL Teamsters Union, the president said the "whole purpose of Republican oratory these days . . . is to persuade the American people that the Democratic party was responsible for the 1929 crash and depression, and that the Republican party was responsible for all social progress under the new deal."

"There is one thing I am too old for," the president declared, "I cannot talk out of both sides of my mouth at the same time."

Campaign Talk Resented
Mr. Roosevelt made a point by point reply to almost every criticism leveled against his administration by his Republican opponent, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

He declared the government welcomes "all sincere supporters of the cause of effective world collaboration, adding that 'millions of Republicans are with us.'"

"And they too will resent this campaign talk by those who first woke up to the facts of international life a few short months ago," when they began to study the polls of public opinion," the president said.

Mr. Roosevelt, speaking before the same union, which heard him open his third term campaign on September 11, 1940, greeted the teamsters by saying:

"I am actually four years older—which seems to annoy some people. In fact, millions of us are more than 11 years older than when we started in to clear up the mess that was dumped in our laps in 1933."

Even Dog Included
From that he launched into an attack upon the Republican campaign.

Progress Of Campaign
On West Coast

BY GARDNER BRIDGE

En route with Dewey to Oklahoma City, Sept. 23 (AP)—Obviously heartened by what one of his aides described as the "accelerating progress" of his campaign, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today mapped an intensive drive through the midwest and New England after winding up his Pacific coast tour.

The Republican presidential candidate sped toward Oklahoma City tonight for the last of seven major broadcasts on his current 6,200-mile transcontinental tour. With him he carried the best wishes of California's Governor Earl Warren, who introduced him as "our next president" to 90,000 cheering persons in Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum last night. It was by far the biggest crowd of Dewey's trip.

After delivering the last of his current series of talks in Oklahoma City Monday night, the New York governor plans to go directly to Albany to catch up on state business before setting out again in quest of the important Middle West and "down East" votes.

Whether he planned to tune in tonight on President Roosevelt's speech was not made known. His special train was equipped with radio receivers.

No Increase Given To B-Card Drivers

Washington, Sept. 23 (AP)—OPA has decided against liberalization of "B" gasoline rations to take care of certain hardship cases, it was learned today.

A plan under consideration several weeks called for larger rations for a few "B" motorists whose in-course-of-work driving is essential but not quite within qualifications for a "C" card. It suggested for these borderline cases a "B" ceiling throughout the country of 825 miles of driving a month. The current "B" ceiling is 325 miles in the east, 400 in the far west and 475 in the rest of the country.

JEW SOLDIER

Request Prayerbooks
At Fort Custer

BY CHARLES E. MARENTEFFE

Fort Custer, Mich., Sept. 23. (AP)—A Jewish army chaplain told today how Jewish members of Hitler's Wehrmacht—newly arrived at Fort Custer prisoner of war camp from the beach of Normandy—exercised their newly found freedom by requesting Jewish prayer books, Jewish scriptures and mezuzahs even before putting aside their German army uniforms for captive garb.

"The men scooped up the religious materials enthusiastically," Chaplain Martin M. Perley declared, "even the non-Jews among them taking copies of the scriptures and prayer books."

Chaplain Perley said he was "flabbergasted" when he received a call from the director of the prisoner of war camp asking him to visit a group of Jewish captives who had just arrived from the battle fields of Normandy.

"Jews in the mighty Nazi army," he exclaimed, "It sounded incredible. I found the men in a separate compound. There were about twenty in the group and they were still clad in the uniform of the German army. Some of them could speak a little English and I could understand a little German."

"Most of them, I found, were half-Jews, and only one of them was a full Jew. Some had apparently spent months in German concentration camps but when the manpower shortage in Germany became acute they were drafted into Nazi labor battalions. D-day found them in Normandy working on fortifications."

According to camp officials, when the beachhead was established and the Allies started their advance along the Normandy peninsula, these men were given uniforms, arms and ammunition and absorbed into the German army. Some had been in the army only eight days before they were captured.

Shipping On Lakes
To Wind Up Early

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—The record-breaking Great Lakes shipping season was expected today to wind up about mid-November, the earliest closing since Pearl Harbor.

The Great Lakes Carriers Association said that lake shipping already has reached an all time high, despite the fact that iron ore shipments have been reduced to 80,000,000 gross tons.

Carriers have moved more than 104,683,842 net tons of coal, grain and iron ore already this season, an increase of approximately 14,370,620 tons over last season.

The association said tonnage moved on the lakes equals more than twice the amount shipped from all the other combined ports in the United States during a comparable period.

BY NOLAND NORGAAARD

Rome, Sept. 23. (AP)—American forces have smashed through the center of the German Gothic line and are looking down on the Po Valley of northern Italy, it was disclosed tonight, while the British Eighth army on the east coast, fighting out onto the Po plains, pushed the Nazis out of strategic road and rail positions.

Sid Feder, Associated Press correspondent with the Fifth army, said the exact location of the new American positions could not be disclosed, but that, "it seems safe to say the smash which carried Fifth army troops over some of the tallest peaks in Italy to where the broad Lombardy plain—at the gateway of which lies Bologna—is unfolded before them, tore the heart out of the Gothic line at a point where it was probably the deepest."

Bridgehead Deepened
Previous reports had put the Americans 28 miles south of Bologna at the southern threshold of strategic Futa Pass.

The American advance was rammed home with one of the heaviest artillery concentrations of the war, with some German prisoners reporting the shellfire had cut some of their battalions to as few as 60 men.

The Brazilian expeditionary force on the western seaward flank hammered on 20 miles northwest of Pisa to within 25 miles of the Italian port of La Spezia.

Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's Eighth army routed the last enemy troops south of the Marecchio River, which flows through the fallen eastern Gothic line anchor of Rimini and was swiftly deepening the bridgehead across the stream.

As they fought out on to the ancient Via Aemilia, a highway which runs along the southern edge of the Po Valley 75 miles northwest to Bologna British and Canadian troops were rounding up an increasing number of prisoners. Other Eighth army forces were fighting straight north toward Ravenna, 34 miles beyond Rimini.

Auto Hits Railroad Car Saturday Night; Driver Injured

Manistique, Sept. 23.—Phyllis Plante, 17, was instantly killed when the auto in which she was a passenger crashed into the side of a S. Line railroad car at the railroad crossing on Elk street at ten o'clock tonight.

Dick Bakley, River road, driver of the car suffered a broken collar bone, broken nose and the loss of teeth in the crash.

Bakley was driving east on Elk street when his machine ran into the railroad car which was standing still, half-way across Elk street at the Elk and River street intersection. The railroad car had been left at the crossing during switching operations on the railroad.

The Plante girl had been staying at 107 S. Third street. Her mother is in Milwaukee. The body was taken to the Kafauver and Jackson funeral home.

Following treatment at the hospital Bakley was taken to the home of his mother Mrs. Della Bakley, River road.

Police investigation of the accident has uncovered no eye-witnesses to the crash.

GOP ORATORS CALLED FAKES BY ROOSEVELT

paign, although he did not mention Governor Dewey by name.

He termed a "callous and brazen falsehood" an assertion that that administration plans "to keep men in the army when the war is over, because there might be no jobs for them in civil life."

"Why," Mr. Roosevelt continued, "the very day that this fantastic charge was first made, a formal plan for the method of speedy discharge of the army had already been announced by the war department—a plan based upon the wishes of the soldiers themselves."

Mr. Roosevelt said Republican leaders have carried the attacks against his administration even to "include my little dog Fala. Unlike the members of my family he resents this."

The president said as soon as Fala heard the "Republican fiction writers" had made public a story that the dog was left behind in the Aleutians during the president's Pacific tour and had to be rescued by a destroyer at a cost of $20,000,000 "his Scotch soul was furious. He has not been the same dog since."

Turning to the nation's military leaders are not helped by men who "without responsibility and without knowledge of the facts, lecture the chiefs of staff of the United States as to the best means of dividing our armed forces and our military resources between the Atlantic and Pacific, between the army and the navy and among the commanding generals of the different theatres of war."

Replying to Governor Dewey's repeated charge that the administration has been unable to solve unemployment, the president said the keynote of his entire reconversion program can be found in the word "jobs."

He said the government will lease or dispose of plants and facilities on the basis of how they can be used best to give jobs to the greatest number, asserting: "We shall follow a wage policy that will sustain the purchasing power of labor—for that means more production and more jobs."

"This is not the time in which men can be forgotten as they were in the Republican catastrophe which we inherited. The returning soldiers, the workers by their machines, the farmers in the field, the miners, the men and women in offices and shops do not intend to be forgotten."

Dictators Copied He accused Republican leaders of bringing into the campaign the "propaganda technique invented by the dictators abroad."

"That technique: You should never use a small falsehood; always a big one, for its very fantastic nature will make it more credible if only you keep repeating it over and over again."

Republican leaders, he said, now are asking the country to forget what they used to say about preparations for defense and for the war itself.

"They are enlightened, liberal elements in the Republican party and they have fought hard and honorably to bring the party up to date and get it in step with the forward march of American progress," he said. "But these liberal elements were not able to drive the old guard Republicans from their entrenched positions."

Then accusing the opposition of trying to take over credit for the social progress of his own administration, Mr. Roosevelt asked "can the old guard pass itself off as the new deal?"

"I think not."

"We have all seen many marvelous stunts in the circus but no performing elephants could turn a handspinning without falling flat on his back."

Platform Ridiculed Mr. Roosevelt poked fun at the Republican platform plank which he said "accepts the purpose" of the national labor relations act,

Touchdown Scored After Gun Gives UCLA 13 to 13 Tie

BY HAROLD CLAASEN

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—A touchdown scored after the final gun brought UCLA a 13-13 tie with Southern California and a spectacular performance by Jim Yonel gave Great Lakes a 27 to 18 verdict over Purdue today as football strode back onto the nation's sports stage.

Yonel, former University of Iowa athlete, pitched a trio of touchdown passes and scored the fourth himself on a 93 yard punt return that halted Purdue's unbeaten string and ruined Cecil Isbell's debut as coach of the Boilermakers.

Southern California got its 13 points in the second quarter but the UCLA's waited until the final period. In fact, the final gun popped while Johnny Roesch was in the midst of a 74 yard sprint for the goal with the tying score.

The Californian's speed compared to the swiftness shown by the University of Illinois mercury men. With Claude (Buddy) Young, collegiate dash champion, counting one touchdown and helping to set up another, the Illini mastered Indiana, 26 to 18. Bob Hornscho-meyer made an appearance for the Hoosiers but Don Greenwood intercepted one of his desperation passes for the final score.

A slugging melee that sent George Strohmeyer, Iowa Seahawk center, to the bench and led directly to a Minnesota score marked the Flyers' third straight victory over the Gophers, this time by a 19 to 13 score. Strohmeyer hit Red Williams, Gopher captain, at the start of the third period and after the penalty was assessed, Williams hiked the remaining 21 yards for a score in a single attempt.

The ancient Statue of Liberty play helped Wake Forest's Civilian to a 7 to 0 triumph over North Carolina. Pittsburgh, also manned by civilians, measured West Virginia, 26 to 13.

A blocked punt and a conversion by Jim Young gave Arkansas a 7 to 6 decision over Missouri in an inter-conference fray and Duke had no trouble with Richmond, 61 to 7, in a game that came only a day after six Richmond regulars were declared ineligible.

John Duda punched over three touchdowns in the first half as Virginia smothered Hampden-Sydney, 37 to 0, and Gen Huba traveled 176 yards in 28 tries as Bucknell polished off Muhlenberg, 14-0.

In other games, Fort Warren defeated Colorado, 7 to 4; Washington trounced Williamette, 71 to 0; California trimmed St. Mary's hopeful freshmen, 31 to 7, and Oklahoma A. & M. spoiled West Texas State's return to the gridiron, 41 to 6.

Pays $10 Fine For Selling Game Fish

William O'Connell of 317 South 15th street pleaded guilty in Justice Henry Ranguette's court to a charge of selling black bass, classified as a game fish, and yesterday paid a fine of $10 and costs of $9.50.

Conservation officers arrested O'Connell after he had sold the fish to a local restaurant, with the proprietor unaware that the sale was illegal. The sale of any fish classified as a game fish is prohibited by law.

the wage and hour act, the social security act and other federal social laws, declaring:

"Many of the Republicans leaders and congressmen and candidates who shouted enthusiastic approval of that plank  would not even recognize these progressive laws, if they met them in broad daylight."

He said that as a matter of fact they have spent years of energy and money "fighting every one of those laws."

Mrs. Roosevelt said there are "labor baiters" in his opposition who prefer to "pick on the occasional strikes which have occurred—strikes which have been condemned by every responsible national labor leader, every national leader except one."

"And that one labor leader, incidentally," he said, "is certainly not among my supporters."

The president used no name in that connection but his reference obviously was to John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, who is a fourth-term opponent.

MARKET WINDS UP GOOD WEEK

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—The stock market today concluded a fairly satisfactory week, in the matter of prices if not of volume, with investment demand centering on specialties, principally rail equipments.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up 2 of a point and for the week a net advance of 6. Traffic to total 241,910 shares compared with 276,240 last Saturday and were among the smallest of the year to date.

Pepsi-Cola and Grumman Aircraft touched new highs for 1944 today as talk revived of possible stock splits for these companies. Best levels for the year also were recorded for American Locomotive, Lima Locomotive and Pressed Steel Car.

General Steel Castings preferred jumped 6 points on edit-out transactions. In front were Santa Fe, Baldwin Locomotive, Bethlehem, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., U. S. Rubber, Ford and Electric Plant.

Of 596 issues registering, 289 were up and 307 down or unchanged. Bonds were steady. At Chicago wheat was up 1 3/8 to 2 3/8 cents a bushel. Cotton gained 20 cents to $1.15 a bale.

Tilting forward in the curb were Atlas Drop Fuel, Dolacomb, Glen Alden Coal and Republic Aviation. The Associated Press average of 10 foreign issues advanced 1/2 point to 68.7. U. S. governments were quoted near the final levels of Friday.

Transactions totaled $2,511,000, face value, against $2,517,600 the previous Saturday.

CHICAGO PRICES

CHICAGO BUTTER Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—The butter market was firm today and unchanged at OPA ceilings.

CHICAGO EGGS Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—Eggs were nominally unchanged, extras, 40 to 45¢; center, 35 1/2 to 38, and current receipts, 32 to 35 1/2.

CHICAGO POTATOES Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—Potatoes, arrivals 117, on track 203, total U. S. shipments 1,183; supplies moderate, demand slow. For Idaho russets market firm for U. S. No. 1 grade and unsettled for Idaho utility grades; for northern states market steady for best quality, weak for off-condition.

CHICAGO GRAIN Chicago, Sept. 23 (AP)—Grain futures markets were strong today, rye leading the advance in a trade in which commission houses and professional traders were good buyers and offerings were light.

Market analysts saw little in the news to influence the trend other than the support the government is providing for the cash wheat market. Action of the Commodity Credit Corporation in buying by one cent the price it will pay for wheat in store at terminals and subterminals east of the Mississippi river was regarded as definite indication of government attempt to hold wheat prices near parity.

At the close wheat was 1 5/8 to 2 3/8 higher than yesterday's finish, December $1.55 5/8. Corn was up 3/4 to 1 1/4, December $1.11 1/4, to $1.11 3/8. Oats were 3/4 to 1 3/8 higher, December 59 to 59 1/8. Rye was 2 1/4 to 2 5/8 higher, December $1.60 to $1.60 1/8. Barley was 1 1/4 to 2 3/4 higher, December 99 to 94.

HELP REACHES LOST DIVISION NEAR ARNHEM

reinforcements who had landed two days earlier to take some of the pressure off the Tommies in Arnhem.

Nor was there any sign of enemy weakening on the Third army front, where on the plains of Lorraine east of Nancy the biggest tank battle ever fought on French soil thundered into its fifth day. Sixty more enemy tanks were knocked out.

But as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower declared in a press conference at an advanced command post in France, the military position of Germany is hopeless and the length of the war depends upon how long the army can stand the terrific pounding from west, south and east and upon how long the Gestapo can rule the Reich.

Countryside Flooded The fighting in Holland, however, was an indication of the German will to resist.

Hundreds of Hitler's soldiers died in their tracks rather than retreat as the British Second Second army fought up opposite Arnhem. The Tommies traveled over a road where fighting still raged on both sides and where the Germans often were close enough to sweep it with artillery.

The base of operations at Eindhoven was widened a mile or so on both sides, with the British advancing well beyond Vessem, eight miles to the west.

A Dutch government spokesman said the Germans had flooded the entire western stretch of Holland from Amsterdam 70 miles south through Utrecht and Breda, isolating the big city of Rotterdam.

This broad flood zone, which the Dutch estimated would ruin the soil for cultivation for the next ten years, covered the retreat of the Germans pulling out of northwestern Belgium across the Schelde river.

Radio Orange, Free Netherlands station in London, reported the Germans were preparing to destroy the great harbor works at Amsterdam.

BY HENRY B. JAMESON

London, Sept. 23 (AP)—At least 27 German planes were destroyed in a series of dogfights over Holland today as a great armada of American and British glider-towing transports delivered thousands of fresh troops and supplies to help efforts to relieve the "lost division" in the Arnhem area.

The transports flew through blinding flak to accomplish their mission.

The daring trip was carried out in the latter afternoon, the aid of a sudden break in the weather. The German radio later warned that night bombers, which had been held back for several days by weather, were over the Reich again.

Observers accompanying the airborne reinforcements described it as one of the most dramatic of any of the week's numerous leap-frogging operations to land among the dikes and windmills.

First reports regarding enemy air opposition were somewhat confusing. A special announcement from supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force mentioned "strong opposition from the ground and in the air," while one observer reported he

LAST HALF ZIP WINS FOR U. M.

Marquette Defeated 14-0 By Drives Off 69 And 87 Yards

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 23 (AP)—Two last half Michigan drives of 69 and 87 yards brought the Wolverines a 14 to 0 victory tonight over Marquette in the teams' first meeting in 35 years. The game was the first ever played at night by a Michigan football team.

The Wolverines started their first scoring parade after Marquette's kickoff at the beginning of the third period. Gene Derricotte, freshman halfback from Defiance, Ohio, lugged the kick back 26 yards to the Michigan 31, from where the Wolverines scored in 11 plays. The entire advance was on the ground, Derricotte going from the five, Joe Ponsetto, Flint quarterback, added the point from placement.

Michigan didn't throw a pass in the first half but the pitching-catching team of Bill Culligan of Detroit and Dick Rifenburg of Saginaw completed two valuable aeriels in Michigan's fourth period drive, the second completion good for 39 yards and the Wolverines' second score. Ponsetto again kicked the point.

Two great defensive stands—one by each team—broke up other scoring opportunities. Michigan drove 69 yards in a sustained march which began late in the first period but lost the ball on a fumble on the Marquette 11. A moment later the Wolverines shoved 35 yards for a first down on the Marquette one yard line but the Hilltoppers stopped four straight plays into the line and took over on downs.

Nussbaumer Best Gainer Nussbaumer reached the Michigan 12 but the Wolverines held for downs on the three.

Michigan had an edge in first downs, 18 to 11, and in rushing yardage, 230 yards to 58 net.

The victory was the second straight for Michigan, which beat Iowa Pre-Flight, 12 to 7, last week.

Bob Nussbaumer, Oak Park, Ill., halfback, was Michigan's leading ground gainer with 107 yards net on 17 rushing attempts—an average of 6.2 yards a crack. Nussbaumer and Derricotte each had a big hand in the Wolverines' two payoff marches. Derricotte marking up one 17-yard jaunt around right end in the first drive and Nussbaumer hitting for 11 and 13 yards in two thrusts during the fourth period parade climaxed by the same Culligan-Rifenburg passing team that clicked for both of Michigan's scores against the Seahawks.

Marquette, playing its first game this season, threw up a fine line in spots, but the Wolverine saw only one Nazi plane.

Recalling the desperate effort the Luftwaffe made to break up the last glider convoy to the Netherlands—with a loss of 20 Allied planes—it is probable that a much stronger escort was employed today.

Probably today's escort numbered well over 1,000 fighter planes.

power hammered it to pieces on Michigan's three long marches.

The Hilltoppers had a constant passing threat in John Rudan, Racine, Wis., Navy V-12 trainee, whose pitching accounted for most of Marquette's 90 yards on ten pass completions in 24 throws.

Michigan completed four of eight passes for 67 yards. A crowd of approximately 18,000 saw the game.

Michigan, with its two straight victories, tackles Indiana next Saturday at Ann Arbor in its first Western conference game of the season.

Michigan substitutes: Ends—Mann, Rifenburg; Tackle—Brielmaier; Guards—Burg, Chlaeverlin, Weyers, Sohacki, Mauth; Centers—Lund, Watts; Backs—Culligan, Chubb, Weisenberger, Bentz.

Italian industrial city of Milan.

The clandestine pro-Allied Milan radio declared the Germans had been clearing out of that area for several days and a general strike had been called in the Piedmont to hamper their retreat to the Brenner Pass.

There was no official confirmation of this report, but heavy aerial assault on communications in the area of Milan indicated that the movement of enemy troops was substantial.

Medium bombers singled out dozens of highway and railway bridges from northeast of Venice westward to Milan in an attempt to maroon and destroy as much of Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring's army as possible.

ANTI-RAT DRIVE HELD YESTERDAY

About 1,000 Pounds Of Poison Distributed In Escanaba

Between 900 and 1,000 pounds of poison rat bait was placed in old buildings, in alleys and other places in the city inhabited by rodents, in a program sponsored by the city in cooperation with Escanaba Boy Scouts.

Fourteen Boy Scouts and eight city employees distributed the bait yesterday in a drive that started at 8 o'clock in the morning and was not finished until mid-afternoon. During those hours, however, the death of hundreds of rats was assured by the careful placing of the bait.

S. N. Bradford, district Scout executive, and A. V. Aronson, city engineer, directed the campaign. The poison bait was loaded into trucks and from the trucks was distributed to the Scouts and the supervising adults, who placed the bait where it would be likely to do the most good.

Alleys, vacant buildings, old sheds and other places likely to be inhabited by rats were given special attention. In some places residents requested and were given some of the poison to place inside buildings.

"There was perfect cooperation from everyone," Bradford said. Some rats were seen by the Scouts as the work progressed. In one place, a vacant building, the rats were so numerous inside they had eaten many holes through the walls—and one through the roof near the chimney. Nearby residents said the place was "alive" with rats.

Boy Scouts who helped in the campaign were Ed and Gerald Baker, Harold Samuels, Charles Prokos, Frederick Johnson, Robert Linden, Bob Frazer, Jack Bennett, Jack Edick, Donald Christensen, Peter Braamse, Marshall Needham, Bob Houle and Douglas Bradford.

City employees who supervised the placing of the bait were Wilfred Vorin, Maynard Schwaag, Fred Brandt, Charles Mason, John Dechantell, Henry Blake, Norman Burdick and James Clark.

A reserve of approximately 600 pounds of poison bait was kept by the city for "clean up" work on the rat population. This will be distributed wherever it is needed to follow up yesterday's drive and complete the eradication program.

Residents who see rats, or new evidence of rats on their property and want to get rid of them may have a supply of the poison adequate for this purpose. They may obtain the poison by calling 321. City hall.

The poison comes in 21 ounce paper cans and is kept frozen in storage. It is made of ground meat or fish, with the red squill mixed into it. Only a small piece of the bait, about the size of a 25 cent piece, is needed in any one place.

Those who placed the poison bait said that in some places it had disappeared only an hour or so after being placed near rat runways, indicating that the city's rat population will be considerably less today than it was yesterday.

Old Orchard Farm

All in Readiness for Big Auction Sale

Old Orchard's farm crew and the manager, as well, must give considerable attention this week to the perfection of plans for "the sale," to be held at the farm next Saturday afternoon. At that time the Daily Press experimental farm will dispose of its herd of registered and grade Jersey and Guernsey cows, heifers and calves, in order to install Milking Shorthorns, as the foundation herd at Old Orchard.

Old Orchard's manager has never claimed, and does not now claim, that he has the best milk herd in the peninsula, but he does claim that his herd of Jerseys and Guernseys will stack up pretty well with any milk herd of these breeds in this section. The original herd was made up, in its entirety, of registered Jersey and Guernsey cows and while only two of the original herd are now at the farm, to be disposed of at this sale, the remaining animals are the result of carefully planned straight and cross breeding, aimed at high butter-fat milk production. Early in his experience, starting six years ago, he found that the highest butter-fat producing Jerseys had small teats and were hard milkers. He set out to "breed teats" on that strain and he believes he has been quite successful in that endeavor. At least he has, cows in the herd, to be disposed of next Saturday afternoon, that held high places in the old Delta Milk Testing Association and throughout the history of those tests Old Orchard's herd was either at or close to the top. Every cow, heifer and calf in the herd is a farm pet and to send them to new owners and new homes, required the expenditure of considerable will power, when the time came for making a decision.

Dual Purpose Cow
Old Orchard's manager has been intrigued for several years with the belief that there is such a thing as a dual purpose cow—a cow that is a reasonably high milk and butter-fat producer and one that can be sold, when her milking days are over, for something better than as a cheap "cutter". He has faced the necessity and knows that his neighbors have made the same sacrifice in seeing some of his best cows go to the butcher's at from 5 to 7 cents per pound, when something went wrong with their milk production and when beef prices were three and four times the price he was able to get for his animals.

He became convinced that a farmer could afford to sacrifice a little something in butter-fat production, if he could get "beef" prices for his dry cows and steers. Old Orchard's manager made several trips through Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and the lower peninsula and he became convinced that Milking Shorthorns came closest to that ideal. He found that good cows of that breed approached Holstein standards of milk production and that the average butter-fat test seldom fell below four per cent. He found that the average "dry" Milking Shorthorn, fattened quickly and could be sold at beef prices, weighing from 1500 to 1800 pounds.

Buys 6 Cows and Bull
Old Orchard's manager believes there is a place in the dairy scheme of the peninsula for the Milking Shorthorn breed. He has purchased six registered cows and a bull—the very best animals of their kind to be found in the central west—and will endeavor to prove his belief in this breed to other farmers and dairymen of this section. That is the sole reason for the dispersal sale to be conducted at Old Orchard next Saturday. He regrets the necessity for the parting with a lot of old friends, down in the stable, but he believes he will become equally attached to the new cows that have come in to take their places in the stanchions.

All of the animals to be sold have been subjected to Bangs and Tuberculin tests in the past ten days. A certificate of health will accompany each animal that is sold. This week, breeding records, production records and a history of each animal must be prepared for the use of the auctioneer, Col. William Darland, when he calls the sale to order at 12:30 o'clock next Saturday afternoon.

Just how to handle Ring, the farm dog, on the day of the sale, is also a matter that will have to be settled this week. With fair weather conditions prevailing it is expected that a large crowd of visitors will assemble and accompanying some of the visitors there will probably be strange dogs. Ring is such a friendly cuss that some of his canine guests might take advantage of his hospitality and start battles that Ring might not be able to finish. It's just possible he may go into enforced seclusion for the afternoon.

JOINS H. S. FACULTY

Marquette—Several changes have been made in the faculty personnel at the Northern Michigan College of Education and the John D. Pierce training school.

Yesterday the state board in Lansing confirmed the hiring of Kenneth Bateman, formerly superintendent in Clayton, who will become a member of the Pierce faculty this fall as sixth grade critic, the position formerly held by Miss Vera Haven, who resigned to accept a position in the Marquette city schools.

Production of civilian and military motor trucks for the first six months of 1944 totaled 344,434 units, compared with 320,298 for the same period last year.

In August, 1944, America's stock of new cars on hand had dwindled to about 24,000—less than two and one-half days' peacetime supply.

By the end of 1941 owners of private planes in the U. S. totaled 24,124, compared with 27 million privately owned automobiles.

Little Doe Causes Much Excitement In Escanaba

A lady from the country finds it difficult to go shopping in Escanaba without being stared at—especially when she's a little deer. "What traffic!" she exclaimed at 8:30 a. m. yesterday, gracefully jumping a vine-covered fence in the 200 block, South Tenth street.

"How hard this pavement is," she snorted, tripping across Ludington street in the center of the business district.

The people stared so and made such a fuss she felt more than a little conspicuous.

"I think I'll just stop in here for a minute," she decided, and in her excitement stumbled through the screen door and pushed open the main door into the men's department of the Leader store, 1212 Ludington. She cavorted carelessly here and there (probably looking for a buckskin jacket) and then persuaded Isadore Stein to escort her out through the women's department. She was such an excitable character Isadore thought he would rather lose a customer than a showcase.

In the street again it was the same old story. People kept right on staring as if they had never seen a deer before.

With a disgusted flip of her tail, the lady from the woods straightened her ears, peering at her reflection in a show window, and then galloped into North Escanaba. Perhaps thinking of the long cold winter ahead, she briefly stopped at the Coleman Nee coal yard at 1500 Third avenue north.

"What a town!" she explained when she heard the police car approaching, and jumped straight over into the railroad yards. Men at the Riess coal dock started shouting at seeing a lady way out there at that time of the morning and she turned back.

Last seen she was heading for the North Western railroad station, police reported.

Briefly Told

Scout Meeting Postponed—The meeting of the Hiawathaland Council of the Boy Scouts, scheduled to be held at Escanaba today, has been postponed indefinitely because of a conflict with dates of other events. Announcement will be made later as to when the meeting will be held.

$25,000 Study Fund

G GOVERNOR KELLY informed the Michigan Planning commission conference at Roscommon last week that he would summon the "little legislature" in the near future to appropriate $25,000 to forest a comprehensive study of forest products uses.

The governor also will appoint a forest products industries committee. Under the plan, the University of Michigan would direct the research into the mechanical uses of woods while the Michigan College of Mining and Technology would make experiments with chemical processes.

Much of this ground has been covered already by the elaborate Forest Products Laboratory, conducted by the United States Forest Service at Madison, Wis. Doubtless, the Michigan committee would begin its project, equipped with its past findings, and seek to correlate it with information on the forestry situation in this state.

Such a committee could point the way to new industrial developments. In the Upper Peninsula, for instance, we must find ways of obtaining fuller utilization of our timber at the point of production. In the past, we have been shipping logs and pulpwood to other states for manufacture into furniture, paper, excelsior, toys, plywood and other finished materials.

If these complete processes could be carried on within the Upper Peninsula, it is likely that the forests, although their supply of timber has diminished during more than three-quarters of a century of cutting, would still furnish as many jobs as in the days when lumbering was in its heyday.

Growers Favor It

THE cooperative plan for advertising Michigan potatoes in competition with the Idaho and Maine products is being enthusiastically received by growers in Delta county and elsewhere in the Upper Peninsula.

Whereas certain farmers would not have contributed some of their hard-earned cash for advertising purposes a decade ago, they eagerly subscribed to the plan to donate 50 cents an acre to the fund. In this program the wholesale dealers in potatoes will also contribute on a carload basis.

Michigan potato growers will take advantage of the state advertising fund, which will match the farmers' fund on a 80 and 20 per cent basis up to $5,000. If the initial campaign shows promise, the farmers are thinking of petitioning the legislature for a law that will provide for an assessment of the growers for each bushel produced, such as is done in Maine. In the Pine Tree state, about $225,000 is expended annually for promoting potatoes, while Idaho has a $85,000 advertising fund.

The advertising programs explain why the American housewives, and even some right here in Michigan, ask for Maine or Idaho potatoes when they go to the food store. Michigan's potato growers now seem to be fully aware of this fact.

New Industrial Site

THE Escanaba city council is seriously considering the acquisition of the Steele-Wallace property on Stephenson avenue as a site that could be offered to some new industry.

The building requires a considerable amount of repairs to be in condition for occupancy by an industrial concern, but it is unlikely work could start until wartime restrictions on construction materials are eased. After the collapse of Germany, there is the prospect that some building can be done, however.

Now is the time for communities like Escanaba to take advantage of the wartime migration of industry. When peace returns, there will be much industrial space available in the huge plants that are now engaged in building airplanes, tanks and other military equipment. Then, the opportunities for attracting new industries here probably will not be so bright.

Escanaba has made a good start in its industrial development program. More industries will be needed, however, to supply jobs to the hundreds of men that will return home from the armed forces and war plants in Detroit, Flint and other industrial centers. We cannot afford to stop now.

Two-Fisted Policy

G ENERAL EISENHOWER has outlined a firm policy for the administration of the German territory occupied by the Allies as they march toward Berlin.

Non-uniformed Germans, who serve as spies and who in other ways hinder the Allied forces, will be executed. Residents of the Reich will be required to surrender firearms and wireless transmitting equipment. Civilian travel will be under strict military control.

It's a two-fisted policy that General Eisenhower has adopted for the stamping out of Nazism within Germany. It is the only kind of treatment the Nazis understand and respect.

Railroad Safety

THE railroads received a bad break as far as unfavorable publicity is concerned in connection with a recent wreck because the train happened to be bearing the Republican presidential candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and his campaign party. Consequently, because of the presence of an illustrious personage aboard, the accident was given more news attention than usually is accorded a minor railroad accident.

Mishaps occur despite all the precautions taken by railroads to prevent them, although the installation of new safety devices most certainly is keeping the toll much lower than it would otherwise be in this wartime era of unprecedented travel records.

A dozen major railroads are actively engaged in intensive tests of train-phones, by which the engineer or conductor or both may converse with the dispatcher or even with another moving train. Already perfected so that the physical elements function successfully, it appears probable that the end of the war will witness the most widespread installations of this additional safeguard to train movements.

Yet, as in all industry, the "human element" is a factor against which no carrier may completely protect itself. A lapse for a few moments, a forgotten train order, a moment of inattention, and even the most costly and effective safeguards are nullified. That the railroads are trying their best to minimize every possible form of lassitude by employees or mechanical failures of equipment promises even safer operation.

RELEASING SELF-RELIANCE (Grand Rapids Press)

Deserving of commendation is a liberalized state and federal policy which has permitted 4,000 Michigan residents drawing federal social security grants to accept part-time employment. According to P. F. Fauri, state welfare director, it is the successful outcome at long last of the state's efforts to induce the federal government to eliminate penalties on aid recipients who take jobs to augment their slender incomes.

Such penalties are reminiscent of a situation which existed in many homes during the depression years when members of families on relief were reluctant to accept any sort of casual job lest they incur the displeasure of their "visiting lady" and the loss of their government dole. That even part-time employment would have vastly increased the individual's self-respect and perhaps have started him on the road back to complete independence seems not to have occurred to the New Deal philosophers.

At a time when war needs the services of every available worker, it is doubly important to reclaim all employables for useful occupation. Fauri commented that able-bodied recipients of federal aid now gladly take fulltime jobs when opportunity offers. That is in keeping with the American tradition. It is to be hoped the federal government will never revert to a policy of penalizing self-reliance.

SUNDAY ROUNDUP

Charlotte: Recently I was laughed out of the room for pronouncing POLIO as "polly-oh." Instead of "pole-ee-oh." Do I owe anyone an apology?—D. M. T.

Answer: No. While polio is not yet in the dictionaries, it is a convenient and widely used abbreviation for poliomyelitis, pronounced: POL-ee-oh-my-ee-LY-tis. The first syllable rhyming with "dolly." Polio, then, is correctly pronounced: POL-ee-oh.

Meridian: A news commentator says that Gen. Eisenhower pronounces ANYHOW as "ennyhow." Well, so do I. What do you say?—M. M.

Answer: I agree with you, the general, and all the dictionaries.

Columbus: Please straighten us out on the word INTEREST. We hear "intrist" and "intrest," but we think three syllables should be sounded.—3 Pals.

Answer: Right, Interest, interested, and interesting, in American usage should not be telescoped in the British manner: Say:

IN-ter-est
IN-ter-est-ed
IN-ter-est-ing

Houston: Is it all right to use "drapes" for draperies?—R. R.

Answer: It is an accepted colloquialism that is rapidly approaching good usage.

PELELIU, island of the Palau group. The first syllable receives a slight stress. The third rhymes with "pew, few." Say: PAX-lay-lee.

NIJMEGEN, Dutch city on the Waal (Dutch name for the Rhine. Pronounced: vahl). Caution. In Dutch, the digraph "ij" has a sound similar to "y" as in "by, my." Say: NY-may-jen.

World War In The Air

BY MAJOR A. P. de SEVERSKY

Our air-borne invasion of Holland was unquestionably a magnificent feat beautifully executed. We have ample reason for pride in General Lewis Brereton and other leaders who planned the operation and of the men who carried it out with such speed and precision. It is clear that Americans can do anything that anyone else can, and usually do it better.

But in relation to the invasion of Holland, as in relation to other great events, some commentators and a portion of the press tend to become hysterical in their enthusiasm. Some of them are giving our military leaders credit for new concepts in war-making, new equipment, a revolution in air-borne warfare—things that just "ain't so."

It is my unpleasant duty to pour some cold water on such zeal. I do it reluctantly, and only because a true picture of the undertaking is important for the American people. We still have a war to win in the Far East, and after that we face a peace which will apparently have to be maintained by armed force. An appreciation of the real trend of aerial warfare will be vastly more useful to us as a nation than any super-patriotic illusions.

—SAME AS CRETE—

The truth is that except for some inevitable improvement in equipment, there is comparatively little that is new—certainly nothing that is "revolutionary"—in the Holland invasion as compared with the air-borne invasion of Crete more than three years ago. In some respects, indeed, we can only marvel how little advance has been made.

After isolated experiments in other countries, including those in the United States by General Billy Mitchell, Russia was the first to use paratroopers in substantial quantities in maneuvers in 1930. But it was the Germans who first used them in actual combat in great masses, in the conquest of Poland and Western Europe.

The classic example of invasion through the sky, which will figure in the textbooks and will be studied in the military academies, was of course the occupation of the island of Crete. In the history of air warfare it will hold a place analogous to Waterloo on land or Trafalgar in sea warfare. The invasion of Holland as compared with that of Crete.

Precisely as in the sea power age it was impossible to occupy enemy shores across water until the fleet obtained control of the sea, in the air power age it is impossible to invade from overhead until you have control of the skies over the theatre of operations. In Holland, as in Crete, the invaders had such control. In both instances, they had it by default of the defenders.

Whatever the German reasons for defaulting in Holland, the British default in Crete was the result of underestimation of the air factor. Despite the lessons of the Battle of Britain, naval thinking still held sway. Possessing virtual monopoly of sea power in the Mediterranean, the British did not believe the Germans had a chance. They surrounded Crete with their surface sea forces and waited.

With the skies left to their mercies, the Germans were able to land not only some 15,000 men, but a great many motor vehicles and even 75-mm. guns. The rest of the story is now history. Crete fell and the British Navy, despite its monopoly on the surface, had to retire badly mauled.

—NAZIS USED SURPRISE—

The actual operation in Crete was on a scale about as large as in Holland this month. The chief difference is that the Germans enjoyed the element of surprise. Their move was unexpected. In our invasion of Holland, there was no such surprise. The use of paratroopers is by now an old story and our preliminary bombardment of the invaded area left little doubt as to what was coming. For some reason the Germans selected not to resist our invasion.

There naturally has been some improvement by all belligerent in the equipment and training of paratroopers. But in the matter of air transport facilities remarkably little change has taken place. The Germans at Crete used the Junkers transports (JU-52) which were of pre-war vintage, dating back to 1936, and had long been employed by commercial German airlines.

The American invasion utilized C-47 or DC-3 transports, of roughly the same vintage as the JU-52. This type likewise was developed by 1936 and was used by commercial airlines here. In other words, three years after Crete, we are using air transport equipment about eight years old in design. The only difference, in fact, is that in 1941 the Germans preferred to crash-land heavy weapons in the same transports, whereas in 1944 such weapons are delivered by large gliders towed by four-engine bombers.

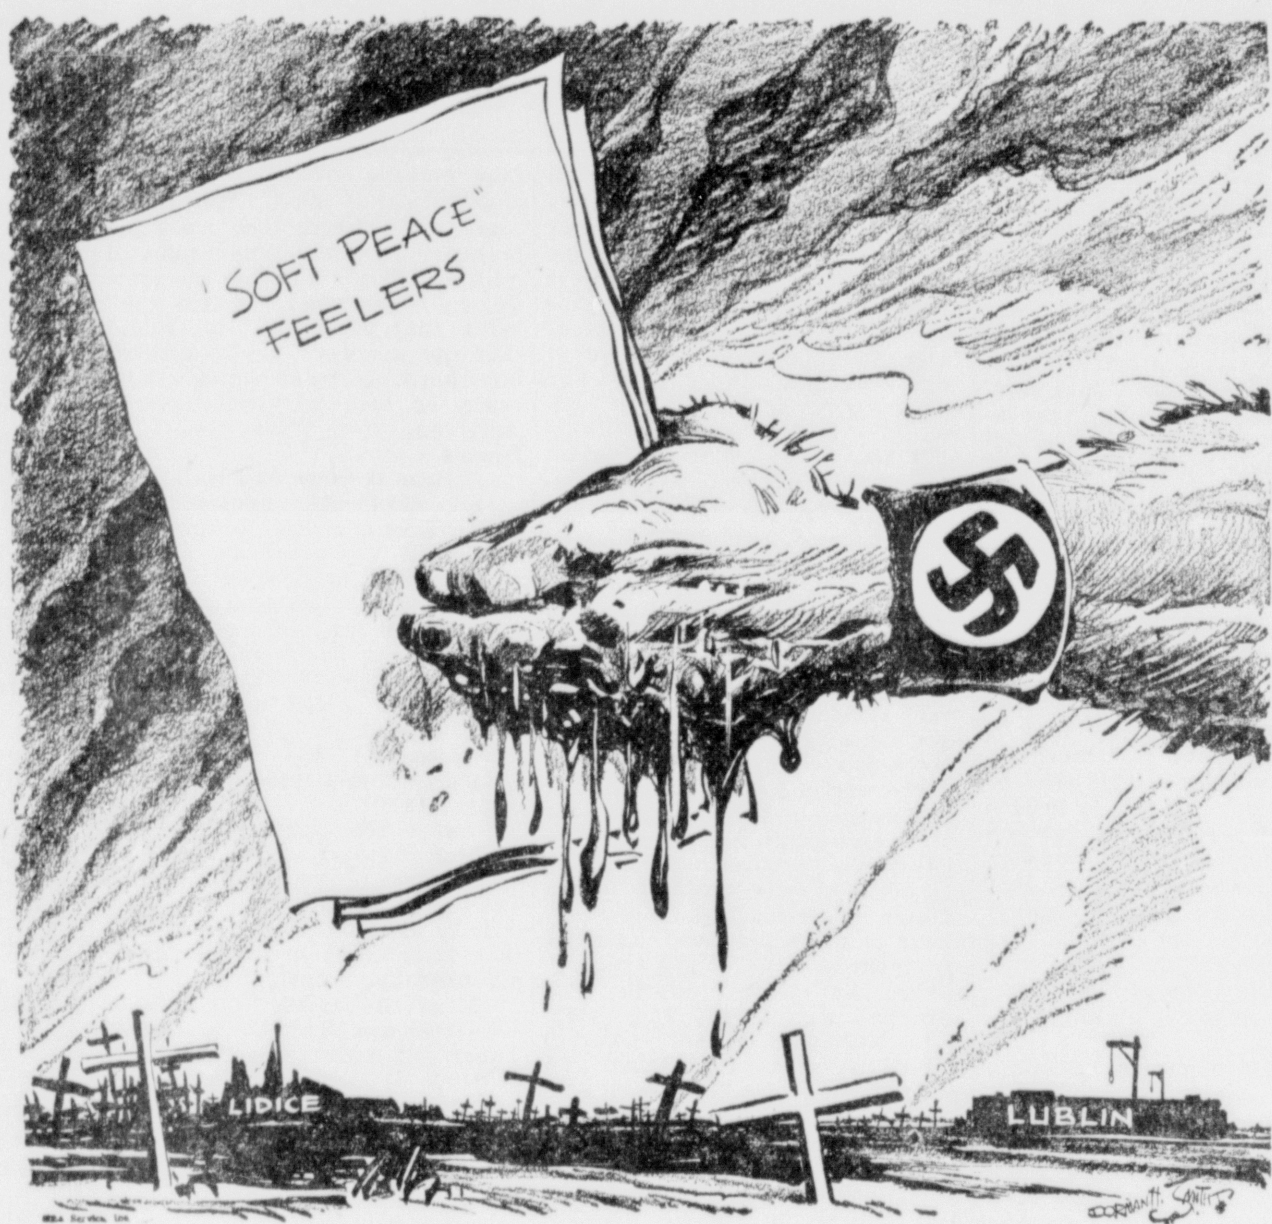

The story of the air-borne invasion of Holland is another glorious page in our military history. But we must realize that air-borne operations have become routine tactics of surface warfare and we cannot expect any extraordinary development. It is in the unfolding of strategic air power that "revolutionary" advances can be expected.

of Nijmegen. Note. Final "e" in German has the obscure "uh" sound like the "a" of "sofa." Say: KLAY-yuh.

MULHOUSE, strategic junction town northeast of Belfort. Caution. Not "mule house." The "u" is a blend of "oo" and "ee", as represented by the Colby symbol: (e). The "h" is silent, as it always is in French. Say: m(e)-LOOZ.

BASEL, city of northwest Switzerland, on French border. Say: BAH-zel. The forms spelled Basle and Bale are pronounced: bahl.

The Quaint, Nazi Sense of Humor

Good Morning!

"ESCANABA" LIVES ON—Early in the war the U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Escanaba was lost in the North Atlantic while on convoy duty. All but two hands perished with the ship that made history as an ice breaker and assistance ship on the Great Lakes before Pearl Harbor.

But the name Escanaba lives on in the war. A victory ship launched last spring on the West Coast was named the Escanaba, and now the former cutter and her brave crew have been honored again, according to Atty. M. Robert Deo, former Escanaba resident. From Washington, D. C., where Atty. Deo is general counsel for the National Automobile Dealers association, he sends clippings from two newspapers in that city describing Escanaba Hall, new quarters for the SPARS in the nation's capital.

It is located on Independence avenue and is the first and largest of five buildings to be completed for SPARS barracks. It contains double rooms for 482 SPARS, quarters for seven barracks officers, and the administrative offices of the barracks group. About 450 girls of the U. S. Coast Guard women's auxiliary have already moved in.

"I have been passing these buildings two or three times a week, but never knew they were to bear the name Escanaba," Atty. Deo writes.

FOR BETTER SERVICE—Announcement that the Michigan institute of local government will conduct training classes for county officers December 18 to 20 at Michigan State College is welcome news indeed. Perhaps we may have, out of these classes, some degree of improved public service and some degree of economy as a result.

D. Hale Brake, Michigan state treasurer, and chairman of the institute, says the classes are primarily for newly-elected county officials, and for those political veterans who might want to "brush up" on their knowledge of office routine.

County clerks, registers of deeds, drain commissioners and some prosecutors are expected to attend the institute, says Brake hopefully. The sessions are open to officials and officials-elect named in the November 7 election.

Just how many "officials-elect" will attend from Delta county has not yet been determined. Perhaps there won't be any. In that case it would still be for the best interests of the citizenry to have such an institute. No dog is too old to learn new tricks, to reverse the old saying.

Looking at it from the unbiased, non-political standpoint, it seems somewhat of a travesty on our county government system to find such an institute necessary. The citizenry should be so alive to the need for electing competent men that neither "brushing up" of the old, nor training of the new should be required. But State Treasurer Brake has the interests of the counties at heart and if he can improve them by this means, more power to him and his institute.

ALL THE TIME—The kids must have known it all the time, they objected so much to eating spinach. For now comes a report from Food Industries, national publication on foods, that spinach contains oxalic acid that hampers the growth of teeth and bones.

Well, parents can't say they weren't warned by their children. What parent, now hanging his head in shameful silence and avoiding meeting the glances of his rickety and toothless offspring,

A county convention of young Democrats will be held in the court house Monday, according to Arthur F. Sawyer, county chairman, for the purpose of electing delegates to the state convention.

Manistique—Fire of unknown origin, believed to have started around electric light wires, threatened the Schoolcraft county court house during the severe rain and windstorm Sunday evening. Fire Chief Underwood injured one of his arms in a fall as he was coming out of the building.

25 Years Ago—1919 Delta hardware company added a big two-ton truck to their delivery system. The truck was driven here from Green Bay by James Frenn.

Little Mary Stack, two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stack, Jr., was painfully burned yesterday afternoon when a pan of scalding water spilled upon her.

has not heard them say vigorously. "I won't eat it! This spinach tastes like poison!" And now to find that Junior was right, that the mess of nauseous grass contained not only a goodly portion of sand—but oxalic acid, too.

Startling, isn't it? To think that all the while parents were force feeding Junior with spinach to "make him big and strong," they were actually causing him bones and teeth to look like the cross section of a Swiss cheese. Only consolation is that Junior seems to have thrown off the effects of oxalic acid and is already growing into more than reasonable facsimile of Commando Kelly and Superman.

SLIGHTLY MIXED UP—So far as can be figured out at this distance it wasn't any one person's fault. Besides, no blame is being placed anyway. It was just one of those mix-ups that occur now and again, even in the best regulated city.

Several weeks ago the city of Escanaba ordered 1,600 pounds of rat eradicator—ground fish and red squill poison—from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. It cost over $500 and was to be shipped to Escanaba from Green Bay in time for the anti-rat campaign originally scheduled for Saturday, September 16.

Inquiries by City Engineer Art Aronson and other city employees failed to reveal any sign of the poison bait when that date arrived and so the drive was postponed a week—until yesterday morning. In the interim the city wrote, telegraphed and telephoned, was promised that it would be taken care of. The city therefore made reservations for storage of the poison at a local cold storage establishment.

Imagine the surprise of everyone concerned when it was found out, through a local trucking office, that the poison had been delivered Friday night, Sept. 15—and was in storage at the very place the city had reserved!

NEW YORK—Robert Hinckley, the recently appointed Director of the Office of Contract Settlement, really was high-pressed into accepting this new government post. Hinckley had been Chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and resigned to settle down in a nice, good-paying job in private industry. Then came the requests for him to take this new job, and Hinckley couldn't resist. . . . His wife didn't want him to return to government work. And when her husband reluctantly accepted it, Mrs. Hinckley explained to her friends: "Bob runs to bureaucracy like LaGuardia runs to fires."

WILL CLAYTON'S resignation will become effective on Oct. 5. Jimmy Byrnes and Bernard M. Baruch have been urging him not to quit. . . . Kathleen Kennedy, who flew from London to New York to console her parents on the loss of their son, Lt. Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., is flying back to England to console the parents of her husband, Lord Harrington, who was killed last week. . . . Henry Luce is back from his trip to England and France. . . . The U. S. Navy is doing a movie on the life of the late President Quezon of the Philippines. Quentin Reynolds will do the com. entary before he leaves for Russia.

DINAH SHORE, the first big-name star to entertain the troops in France, found that the clothes she was wearing weren't suitable for the tough going in the combat areas. At one of the base hospitals she obtained a nurse's fatigue suit, in a swap for lipstick. At another base hospital Miss Shore obtained a pair of shiny high leather boots, in a swap for some pancake makeup. . . . Dinah met Lt. Gen. Omar Bradley who showed her photos of his family. The singer, in return, showed him photos of her husband, George Montgomery, taken at his Montana ranch. Bradley studied the photos, and his only comment was: "After the war, I'm going to settle down in Montana."

W. EUGENE SMITH, the Life cameraman now in the Pacific photographed the invasion of Guam. "During one of the days of heaviest fighting," he writes, "I found myself about 75 feet in front of our front-lines and was pinned down by a Jap machine gunner. I proceeded to kick dirt in my face and camera and then grazed me in the leg and then sliced one across the small. . . back that stung me but merely cut the loops holding my oversize dungarees to my belt, so that when I finally dashed for it I almost lost my pants. And in spite of all that trouble," Smith reports, "the pictures I got were the worst I have shot out here."

DAGMAR GODOWSKY visited Fire Island a few days ago, and met a drama critic who spoke rather harshly about Kyle Crichton, the Collier's writer and novelist. Miss Godowsky reported this to Crichton when she returned to N. Y. . . . "When he attacked me," Crichton asked, "did you say anything about me?" . . . "Yes, I spoke nicely of you," said Miss Godowsky. "But that was a waste of time," said Crichton. "You shouldn't have done that." . . . "I spoke nicely of you," replied Miss Godowsky, "because I didn't want him to think I knew you well."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

(BY DREW PEARSON (Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—As President Roosevelt officially opens his campaign for re-election, he is less confident of winning than he was at the same moment in 1940. He has admitted privately that Dewey has been hitting pay dirt during his travels through the West.

Evidence that the President knows he has a battle on his hands came the other day when a close White House adviser visited him and had a talk about politics.

"How does the election look?" the President asked.

"Well, Mr. President, I think the Democrats are suffering from over-confidence. However, some people are confident that re-election is in the bag," replied the Presidential caller.

"Oh no," said the President, "it's not in the bag. I'll tell you when it's in the bag. You'll know we are winning when the right time comes."

"How will we know?" asked his friend. "We'll know," the President answered, "when the Wall Street boys start coming to Democratic headquarters just before Election Day and offer to contribute to my campaign." Whenever the Wall Street boys come around with those contributions, it means that they're licked and we're sure to win."

The three themes struck by the Dewey crowd which disturb the Roosevelt camp are his assaults on the Roosevelt labor record; on the alleged plan to delay discharging servicemen; and the Republican assault on Sidney Hillman and the CIO-PAC.

Actually, Roosevelt considers his labor record better than ever before in U. S. history. However, Dewey's attacks have confused a lot of workers. White House aides also point to the recent alarm in Army camps over Dewey's charge that the New Deal wants to keep men in the service.

As to Hillman and the PAC, recent White House surveys show this attack is having a strong effect on farmers—a group which the President has already largely lost.

All this adds up to a growing feeling in White House circles that, unless the President hammers hard on domestic as well as foreign issues, he may go down to defeat in November. As a result, top Roosevelt advisers have urged a ringing re-affirmation of the New Deal and a pledge that the early spirit of the New Deal will be extended after the war.

The same group are also urging Roosevelt to make an extensive stumping tour of the country, all the way to the West Coast and back. However, while Roosevelt agrees he'll have to unearth "Dr. New Deal" and soon bury "Dr. Win-the-War," he's still not sold on a coast-to-coast campaign swing.

—TWO NEBRASKA SENATORS— When Pennsylvania's Senator Joe Guffey put a verse tribute to the late great George Norris in the Congressional Record last week, Congressional courtesy caused him to delete one stanza. The poem, entitled "White Foam Breaking," was written by John Beecher and contained a reference to Republican whip Senator Kenneth Wherry, the Nebraska undertaker who has fallen woefully short of Norris in representing the people of Nebraska.

The censored stanza read: "After forty years in the Congress of the United States, George Norris died simply a citizen and, in the Senate seat which he had made more feared by the strong few, more loved by the weak many, than ever a Senate seat before, sat a small-town undertaker destroying his work like a weevil in the good wheat."

—EARL BROWDER— Newsmen were disappointed in Communist Earl Browder when he testified before the House Campaign Expenditures Committee. They thought he would put on a show. But he was quite unfrilled. When Rep. August Andresen, Minnesota Republican, asked if Communists would not coordinate the national well-being to the hastening of socialism, Browder replied: "If all we wanted was communism, we would support the reactionary candidates" (looking hard at Andresen) "who would lead us back to the days of apple-selling. That would be the quickest way to bring about communism."

Andresen said no more. Then reactionary representative "Took" Gathings, Arkansas Democrat, asked for copies of the Daily Worker, the New York paper edited by Browder. "I have never seen a copy," remarked Gathings. Browder promised him several copies and offered to take his subscription. Horrified, Gathings replied that he didn't care to subscribe, to which Browder replied: "You know, some of the best people do subscribe—even the United States Steel Company."

NOTE—A dramatic coincidence during the hearing was the entrance of Dr. Edward Rumely of the Committee for Constitutional Government. He arrived just as Browder was being quizzed about his 14 months in the Atlanta penitentiary for passport irregularity. Dr. Rumely had served nearly as long at Atlanta after the last war for failing to register the New York Evening Mail as a German-owned newspaper.

LIONS SPONSOR U. P. GAME CLUB

Organize All Clubs To Promote Improved
Fishing

Conceived several months ago by the Escanaba Lions club, a conservation movement has been quietly gaining momentum. Beginning with the appointment of a Lions club conservation committee, the movement has spread to other Escanaba service clubs, an organization has been set up and efforts are being made to unite the entire upper peninsula through service and conservation clubs from every city and town.

The nucleus association has chosen the Rev. Karl Hammar as its president and consists of committee members representing the local Lions, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Wolverine association. The committees are: Lions, Norman Holden and Roy Lee; Rotary, Paul A. Wohlen and Louis C. Hermal; Kiwanis, the Rev. Karl Hammar and Louis Nolden; Wolverines, Walter Nelson and Harry Gaudin. Secretary of the group is Norman Holden.

In a statement regarding the aims of the new organization, Rev. Hammar emphasized that its purpose is not to be antagonistic, but to cooperate with existing agencies. An outline of the tentative objectives include:

Public education of upper peninsula potentialities as a resort and vacation area, with adequate highways leading to a definite objective; adequate stocking of all lakes and streams with emphasis on pan fish; development of more rearing ponds.

It was pointed out that good roads alone are not sufficient as a tourist attraction. There must be something attractive at the end of the line. If lakes and streams are properly stocked tourists will use the good roads to spend their leisure time in Northern Michigan, is the theory of the organization.

Invitations have been extended to all service clubs in Upper Michigan, urging them to appoint committees and become a part of this new movement. Other existing conservation groups are being asked to come in so that completely unified the common objective toward the common objective.

Further developments in the growth of the organization are anticipated after October 9, the date chosen by the Escanaba Lions club for a conservation program in connection with its regular dinner meeting.

Efforts are being made to have P. J. Hoffmaster, director of the state conservation department, attend the meeting. Invitations also

South American Progress Spurred By U.S. Influence

Performing engineering miracles with customary American ingenuity, United States construction companies have just about completed the building of defenses in the Panama Canal zone and in surrounding South American countries which makes those areas practically impregnable. As the result of the great influx of American workers and methods, innovations and customs have been introduced to the natives which threaten to entirely revolutionize the historic progress of these small nations.

That South American countries have progressed more in the last few years than during the preceding 50 years is the opinion of George H. Johnson, home on a brief vacation after three years on defense construction projects in Panama and South America. Mr. Johnson expects to spend the next several weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel Johnson, 516 South 17th street.

Military secrecy necessitated discussion of the defense projects in a general way, but Mr. Johnson explained that much of his time was devoted to construction of airfield facilities, especially "revetments" which conceal the big bombers and render them practically immune to damage or destruction from land or air, except in the case of a direct hit from above.

Revetments, Mr. Johnson explained, were built in connection with all airfield runways, and consisted of a short taxi strip leading at right angles from the main runway to the shelter, or revetment. Around each shelter, large enough to hold one bomber, was thrown up a gigantic mound of earth about 40 feet high. Approximately 800 cubic yards of dirt were required for each revetment completed.

Natives Prosper
By arrangement with the governments of the South American countries, a specified proportion of native labor was used in the construction work. The prevailing daily pay amounted to the equivalent of 80c in American money and created an era of prosperity never before equaled, with the consequent result that higher standards of living were achieved which are likely to become a permanent feature of life in the southern hemisphere.

While large numbers of natives took advantage of their sudden good fortune and improved their condition, by far the greatest group, Mr. Johnson stated, took "fliers" at the national lottery with increased zest. Weekly lotteries are national institutions, and with true gambler's vision, the natives regularly and generously pour their incomes into the pot. Once he hits the jackpot, the native figures he's ahead. Years of previous contributions are not considered, since he feels he would have spent the money anyway.

Next to lotteries, the South Americans like their drinks, said Mr. Johnson. The peons have their "cantinas" where they gather to drink cheap rum and watery tasting beer. The rich, or upper class, however, are more fortunate, and great quantities of Scotch whiskey are imported every year for their consumption.

Spaniards Are Friendly
Although the average peon frequently takes on a few too many, he does not become quarrelsome. Drunk or sober he is an extremely friendly individual especially toward the Americans who recently have arrived in such great numbers.

During his stay in Peru, Ecuador and Colombia, Mr. Johnson was impressed with the respect accorded American people, and with the efforts of the natives to please their visitors.

Difference in language proved to be no barrier to friendliness. The natives quickly and eagerly attempted the English tongue and the Americans, armed with a few words of Spanish, made themselves understood.

"Probably the first Spanish the American learns," remarked Johnson, "is 'Que pasa', which translated means something like 'What's the matter', but the phrase has been repeated so often that it has grown to be a byword of greeting, similar to our American 'how are you?'"

Construction of roads in South and Central America has done much to step up progress, Johnson declared. Before the war, the few existing roads were so terrible that there was little travel even between cities. Stagnated by lack of communication the inhabitants went through life very much as their ancestors did and advancement consequently was slow.

Except for a few of the more important sections of the cities, the towns all retain their old fashioned architecture, their iron grilles and balconies. Peons living in the shabby districts still build their shacks on stilts about 10 feet off the ground, although no one seems to know why they do it.

Hot On Cock Fights
Cock fights continue as the national pastime, and any money left after the lottery tickets are purchased, is used for wagering on the results of the battle. With an estimated half their income used for gambling, the peon and his family managed to subsist on the remainder, and while that half before the war might have been as little as five cents a day, the wife and kids always seemed to get enough to eat.

Chicken, fish and rice appeared to be the staple diet, and in the preparation of this fare the peon's daughter took her part. The female offspring is taught from childhood her duties and her station in life, and until her marriage she is carefully watched and protected. No single senorita is seen in public without proper escort and the ardent swain woos her by the simple process of standing outside her house and talking to her as she peers through the grille protected window.

In contrast to this girl in her colorful Spanish garments, is the Panamanian girl, who as a resident of the canal zone has had more contact with modern American civilization and is rapidly reaching the stage of "modernization."

Americans in South America, Mr. Johnson remarked, found much amusement in spending native money. At the current rate of exchange one American dollar equals about $13.70 in the foreign funds, and a group going out of an evening to make the rounds would have their pockets bulging with currency.

Ducks Fly High

Alerted by the gunfire of the first few days of the season the local ducks are flying high and hunters looking for cold north winds in anticipation of flights of migrating ducks. Increased numbers of hunters afield will help over the week end by keeping the birds on the move. "Jump" shooting is now popular but the decoys will soon come into their own. Shooting on the rivers and some of the smaller streams is about as productive now as that on the bay marshes.

Watch The Time

Conservation officers are keeping an ear bent in the direction of the marshes and hunters would do well to see that their time pieces are adjusted and set correctly. Shooting time extends from 6:03 a. m. to 6:50 p. m., until next Wednesday, September 27 when 21 minutes will be lopped off the shooting day. Starting time will drop to 6:11 a. m. and quitting time in the evening then moves up to 6:37.

Stress Safety

In the belief that hunting accidents can be prevented by education in the use of firearms, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs is stressing hunting safety in its plans for the observance of Conservation Week, October 1-8.

"Last fall there were 162 hunting accidents in Michigan. Of these 29 were fatal," says Harry Gaines, executive secretary of the MUCC, and adds: "There isn't any reason why, by serious effort, we can't at least cut this toll in half."

Here are some suggestions to aid hunters achieve that end, and get more enjoyment out of their time afield:

Check your gun before you start. Pitted gun barrels, hair triggers and other mechanical defects sometimes prove fatal!

Be sure your gun is not loaded in your car or camp.

Don't overload duck boats. Don't shoot at game when it is in line with another hunter or a house.

Don't mix alcohol with gun powder.

Don't wander through the woods without checking land marks.

Don't hunt standing up in a boat.

Don't throw away cigarettes or dump your pipe ashes on the ground.

Don't waste ammunition. If you don't know the game laws, find out from your local conservation officer. Ignorance of the law is no excuse.

Be sure that you have on person a small game license and a federal duck stamp.

Write your name across your duck stamp.

Display your back tag on your outer garment.

Study your bag limits and ducks.

See that your automatic or pump gun is plugged so you can shoot only three shells at a loading.

Check your gun and ammunition. Don't mix shell sizes.

Hunt with a buddy so you won't be alone in case of an accident.

Do take your fishing tackle, especially the casting outfit, along on early fall hunting trips. Bass and pike fishing is at its best now.

Heavy Frosts Are Expected Today

Locally heavy frosts are predicted this morning for the Escanaba area, with killing frosts likely in the areas away from the lake, the U. S. Weather Bureau announced yesterday. A minimum temperature of 34 degrees is expected for Escanaba and 30 to 32 degrees in unprotected areas.

A white frost was reported in some of the surrounding areas yesterday morning, but damage to crops was reported light.

Henry Hathaway, meteorologist, reported that a period of warmer weather is likely following this morning's frost.

LaGuardia Field in Queens, N. Y., covers 550 acres and cost approximately $28,000,000 to build.

REX EATS AGAIN — Rex lost his interest in food when his mistress, Helen Geurtsen, left him at home in Milwaukee, Wis., while she migrated to Long Beach, Calif. For 17 days her sister-in-law, Mrs. Louis Geurtsen, watched Rex grow weaker as he refused to accept food. Then came a telephone call from the West Coast. Mrs. Geurtsen lifted Rex to the receiver, as shown above, and the dog heard his mistress' voice. Now he's eating again. (NEA Photo.)

G. I.'s Confused Over WACS, Wax

Fort Warren, Wyo. (AP) — The floors in the post chapel needed waxing. A chaplain's clerk called the motor pool for transportation. "I gotta get some wax from the PX to use in the chapel," he said. "Will you send a vehicle?" Soon a carryall drove up. "What's the idea of the carryall?" the puzzled clerk asked. "For the dames, of course," replied the driver. "What dames?" "Why, the WACS, you're gonna use in the chapel," replied the driver.

Kenneth L. Dixon

WITH THE AEF IN FRANCE, (delayed) (P)—If you happen to run across Mr. Roosevelt down at the corner drugstore will you please tell him to quick call the war off before this guy Hitler gets mad?

I do not wish to seem hasty about the matter, but it would be a terrible thing if Hitler finally lost his temper and decided to unleash his six super-duper secret weapons.

And do not laugh—because I got this information straight from German prisoners, who got it right from Goebbels, which anybody will admit is straight from the horse's mouth or something.

Nazi secret weapon No. 1, as they tell it, is a super rocket which makes the ordinary robot bomb look like a Fourth of July firecracker by comparison. It is capable of wiping out whole cities, with one blow and can be fired across the Atlantic Ocean, controlled and directed right down to a gnat's eyebrow.

The only reason it is unused as yet, the prisoners explain, is because a couple of minor technical details remain to be perfected. Meanwhile, of course, every German soldier must hold the line until it is ready.

No. 2 is super-gas, which, as soon as all the Germans are out of France, will be used to eliminate all the allied forces and the entire French civilian population. This disclosure always comes from prisoners who have deserted because they are unwilling to participate in such mass inhumanity but are unable to explain why they are so anxious to join the Allies who are about to be exterminated.

Hitler's secret weapon No. 3 is a germ bomb which will scatter deadly disease bacteria for miles, starting terrific epidemics of influenza.

curable maladies. It hasn't been used yet because germs thrive best in cold weather—but just wait until winter comes! Meanwhile, of course, Hitler expects every loyal German to continue what might—except for the germ bomb—otherwise be considered a hopeless struggle.

Then there is the hot-and-cold-chill cannon. Some say this artillery shoots a secret shell which runs the temperature up so high that everybody dies from heat prostration. Other captured Germans claim it flings a frigid cannonball of concentrated dry ice which freezes everybody to death when it explodes.

This cannon in its latter form was used last winter in Russia with devastating results, the prisoners insist, despite reports that it was not the Soviets who suffered from cold on the eastern front. It was discontinued there, they add, because Stalin threatened to use gas and Hitler naturally didn't want to see war fought in any such inhuman way as that.

If Mr. Roosevelt still is not convinced that he ought to call the war off, tell him about the disintegrating ray gun which should be enough to scare Churchill and Stalin, too. As soon as this weapon is perfected, you will pull a trigger and doughboys just disappear completely, dogtags and all. It melts the toughest tank and crumbles huge fortifications without even leaving dust.

All the gallant Germans have to do is hold out just a little bit longer and every man will be issued disintegrating ray guns.

Automobiles built during the first two years of the postwar period will contain 50 pounds of copper and brass per car.

Stephenson Condensery Processes 150,000 Pounds Of Milk Daily

PLANT BOOSTS DAILY FARMERS

Large Portion Of Supply
Comes From Delta
County

A mechanical monster that absorbs upwards of 150,000 pounds of raw milk daily. That's the White House Milk company condensery at Stephenson, drawing a large portion of its supply from the Delta county dairy herds.

From early morning until mid-afternoon trucks loaded with many cans of milk gathered from Menominee, Delta and Dickinson counties stream into the unloading platform at the Stephenson condensery. There the raw milk is filtered, pasteurized and evaporated. The following day the evaporated milk, now about 40 percent of its volume as whole milk, is transported to Manitowoc, where it is processed for shipment all over the world. A large supply finds its way to the fighting fronts and to Allied military camps everywhere.

The operation of the evaporation process at the Stephenson plant is an intriguing one. The milk moves speedily and unceasingly at a rate of approximately 9,000 pounds per hour—roughly 4500 quarts—through the series of steps required before the evaporated product is ready for shipment. From start to finish, the milk flows through pipes where it is safely protected against the entrance of foreign substances, dirt or germs.

Process of Evaporation

As the milk is dumped into the receiving vat from the unloading platform, samples are taken from each can for Babcock tests to determine butterfat content. The milk then enters the receiving vat, from where it is pumped through pipes, either enroute to the evaporator or to storage tanks. The volume of milk received at the plant when the trucks arrive is considerably greater than the volume that can be processed for evaporation during that period and a portion of it must be stored for several hours after the last of the trucks have unloaded.

From the receiving vat, the milk passes through a series of filters before it is pumped to the second floor of the plant for the pre-heating or pasteurization process. In this operation, the milk is brought to a temperature of 140 degrees by the addition of live steam and is held at this temperature for a period of 20 minutes before it moves to the vacuum pan, where the actual process of evaporation takes place.

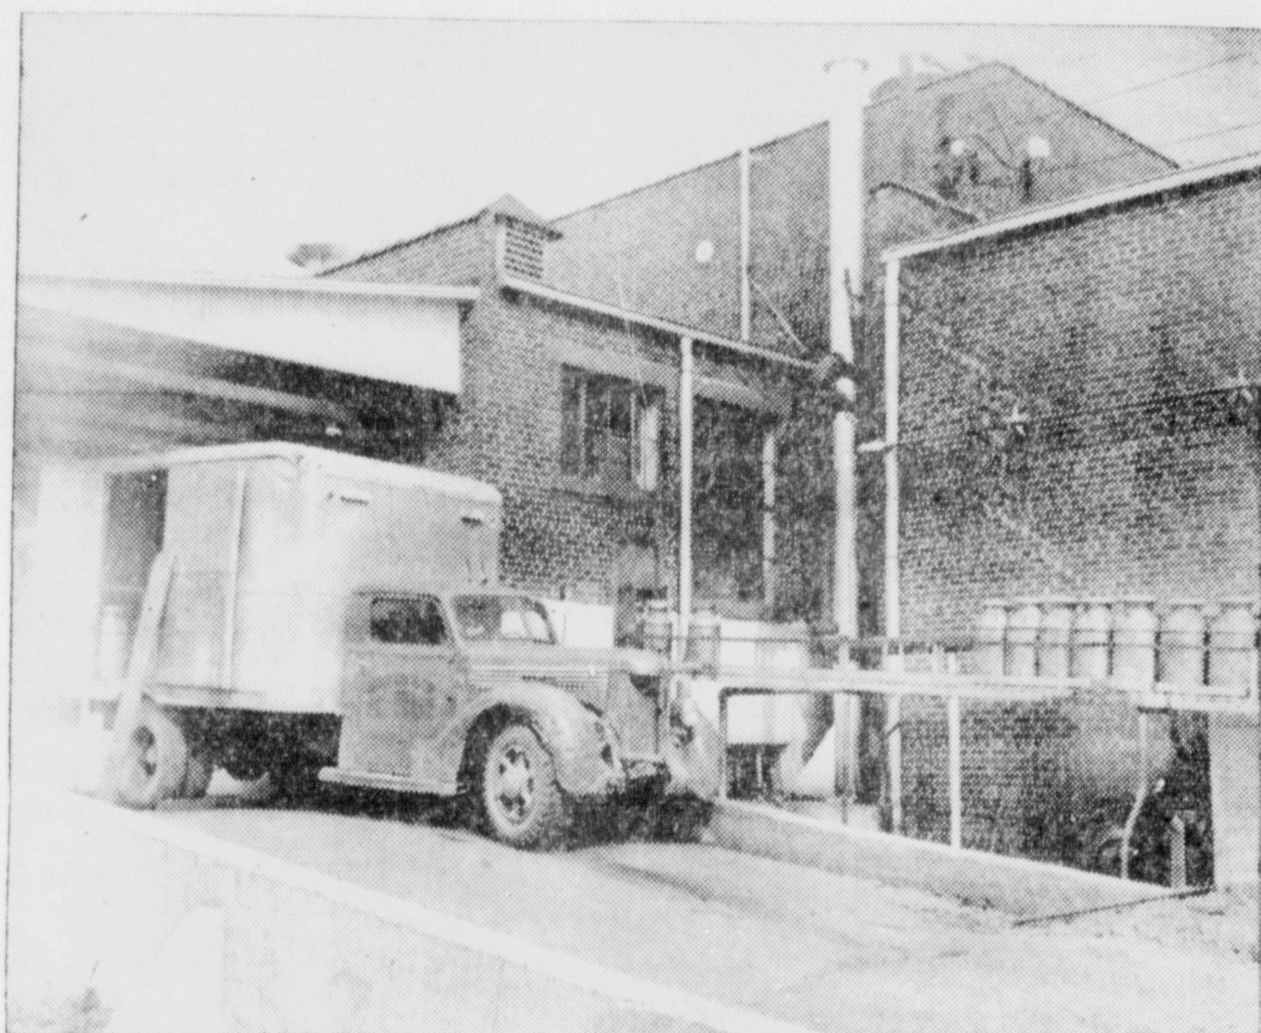

The vacuum pan utilizes a fundamental principle of physics in accomplishing the elimination of approximately 60 percent of the water content of the whole milk. The vacuum pan, so called, is in reality a large airtight copper urn, subjected to a strong vacuum which permits the boiling of the milk at a much lower temperature than at normal atmospheric pressure. This obviates the danger of burning the milk and serves to speed the evaporation process. The whole milk is reduced to less than half its volume at a temperature of 120 degrees in approximately 20 minutes.

Mechanical Marvel

The water drawn off through evaporation is flushed into the sewers. The efficiency of the evaporation process is indicated by the fact that only about two pounds of butterfat out of a total of more than 150,000 pounds of milk are lost per day in the waste. From the vacuum pan, the condensed milk is pumped through the refrigerating coils, where it is chilled before it is sent on its way to the storage tanks.

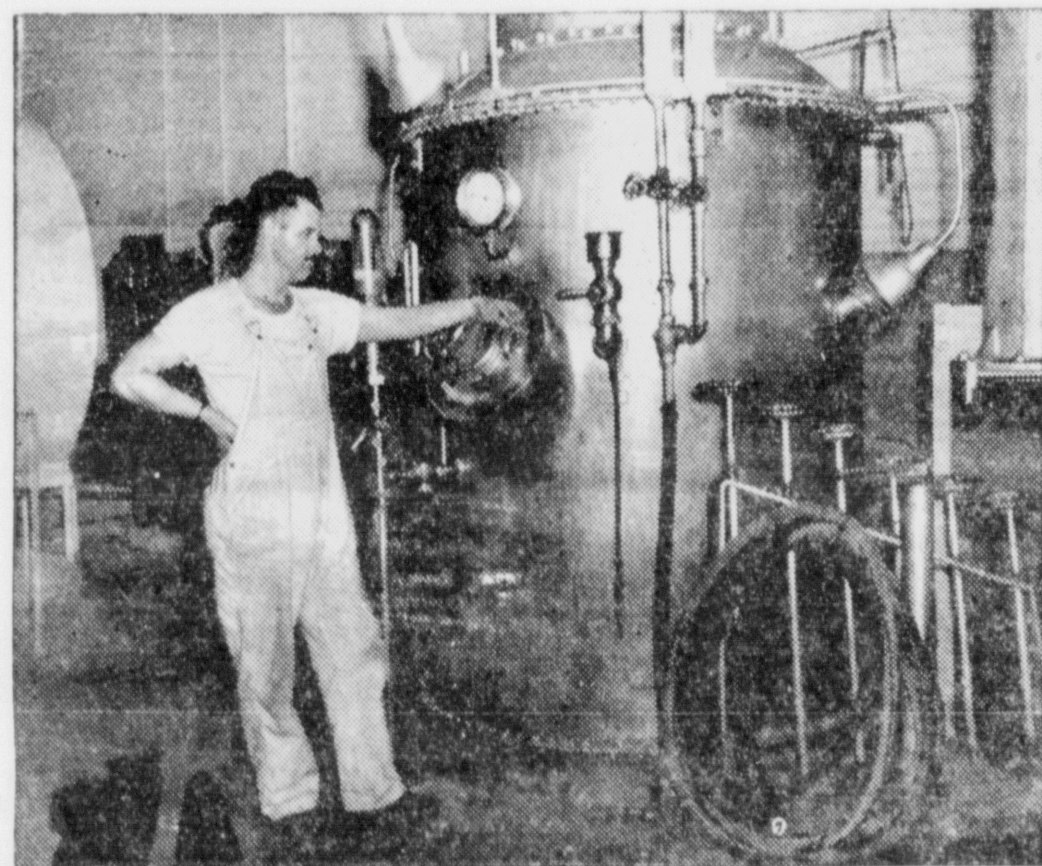

A particularly eye-opening device that is a marvel of mechanical ingenuity is the apparatus that washes, cleans and sterilizes and then dries the empty milk cans after their contents have been dumped into the receiving vat. The cans and their respective lids are cleaned separately along a conveyor belt and then as the process is completed, a device tips the milk can into an upright position and deftly fastens its cover in place, ready to be returned for another refilling at the farm from which it came.

A contraption, recently constructed at the Stephenson plant, that resembles a Japanese pagoda and most certainly cause some wonderment by casual observers, is a wooden tower that is designed to permit the reuse of water in the condensery operations. The tower, equipped with a series of

MILK TRUCKS UNLOAD—From early morning to mid-afternoon, there is a constant stream of heavily laden milk trucks unloading at the White House Milk company plant at Stephenson. This picture also shows milk cans moving from the plant after the milk has been dumped and the cans cleaned, sterilized and dried by a unique conveyor system.

HEART OF THE PLANT—The vacuum pan at a milk condensery is not a pan at all, as you can see in this picture, but rather a big copper boiler that is airtight, thus permitting a heavy vacuum that permits the boiling of milk at a temperature of only 120 degrees. This is the apparatus that reduces the volume of raw milk to less than half without removing any of the essential fats and vitamins. The operator Joe Steinbrecher.

NOT A PAGODA—No, this isn't an oriental pagoda. It is a water regenerative system that permits the reuse of vast quantities of water used in cooling the vacuum pan, or evaporating system, at the milk condensery. The water is cooled on its downward course.

REFRIGERATING UNIT—For proper storage, milk must be kept at a relatively low temperature. This is accomplished at the condensery by the use of this compact, but highly efficient refrigeration system. The milk flows through narrow tubes, between tubes containing ice cold water. From this point it is pumped into the huge heavily insulated storage tanks, each with a capacity of 30,000 pounds. In the background of this picture is one of a series of filters, where the raw milk is filtered before it goes to the evaporator. Paul Palczewicz is operating the gauge in this picture.

POTATO PICKERS ASKED TO SIGN

Need 200 Escanaba Boys
And Girls To Help
With Harvest

There is need of 200 boys and girls from Escanaba to help harvest Delta County's 1944 potato crop, E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, announced yesterday.

Boys and girls who wish to help with the wartime food harvesting program are asked to register immediately with their school principal. All must have the written consent of their parents before they will be excused from school to pick potatoes on county farms.

The potato digging is starting this week. It will be in full swing within a very short time and there is not sufficient labor available to get the potatoes picked up unless boys and girls turn out to help, Wenner said. Requests were received Saturday from two growers who will need 30 pickers.

After the youths have the written consent of their parents and have registered with their school principal, there is nothing more for them to do until they are called to work. They will be notified when they will be needed, and will be provided with transportation to and from the fields.

All pickers in the county will be paid at a uniform wage rate. Altogether about 550 boys and girls will be needed to get the potatoes picked and into storage before freezing weather comes. About 200 of the total will have to come from Escanaba, and the others will be recruited from Gladstone and the county.

"It would not have been possible to get the potato crop harvested last year without the help of the boys and girls of the county," Wenner said yesterday. "They should register in Escanaba with their school principal at once, for they may be called out within a few days."

Plan Van Meer 4-H Achievement Day

Van Meer—Several young people attended the 4-H club weiner roast on Friday evening at the Van Meer school house. Plans were made for the achievement day which will be held here on September 27 with Mr. Walker, Mrs. M. Byers and Mr. J. Heiman judging the exhibits in the afternoon. The evening will be given over to the parents and club members who wish to visit the exhibits. Junior leader, Miss Dorothy Worthing and leader, Frank Berry and Mrs. Berry are making preparations for the event. A short entertainment and refreshments will be furnished visitors.

Entertain Pupils

Reverend and Mrs. Frank Brower and Mrs. Arthur Brower gave several musical and vocal numbers, Mrs. Frank Brower, a chalk artist drew a beautiful scenic picture for the children and Reverend Brower gave an object lesson, using water, an egg and chemicals to bring out a lesson to the children of the Van Meer school on Friday afternoon. The picture will be prepared with colorless lacquer to preserve the colors and will be kept in the school room.

Reverend and Mrs. Brower are radio and church workers at Lima, Ohio.

Briefs

Sodality Group Is Organized For Year

The 7th and 8th grade Sodality group held an organizational meeting in All Saints' parish hall Friday with George Neurohr of the 8th grade presiding.

Introduction of the officers and committee chairmen followed a prayer led by Rev. Fr. Schaul. The prefect of the eighth grade is George Neurohr; vice-prefect, Harold Sarasin; secretary, Roseann Sirola; and treasurer, Verna Thibault. Committee chairmen are, Eucharistic, Beverly Creten; Our Lady's, Dorothy DeMenter; Parish and Mission, John Closs; and Literature, Leonard Rivers.

The seventh grade officers are, Dolores Marmelick, prefect; Henry DeMay, vice-prefect; Harold Gamache, secretary; and Joan Venne, treasurer. Committee chairmen are, Ruth Cannon, Eucharistic; Stanley Juzo, Our Lady's; James Quinn, Parish and Mission; and Charles Gendron, Literature.

There followed a short quiz on the life of our Blessed Mother. The eighth grade asked the first set of questions while the seventh grade answered. The tables were then turned and the seventh graders asked the second set of questions which the eighth graders answered.

Father Schaul gave a brief talk on vocations after which the meeting was adjourned. A prayer and a hymn to Our Blessed Mother followed.

A number of eighth grade girls have organized a choir for the purpose of singing at week-day high masses. They will also learn some three-part Christmas carols. The choir elected Dorothy DeMenter as president and Alice Harvey as secretary-treasurer. The following are members of the choir: Dorothy DeMenter, Alice Harvey, Dolores Louis, Roseann Sirola, Dolores Hart, Beverly Creten, Beverly Cartwright, Agnes Belongie, Elaine Ross, Pat Willis, Betty Brassick, Jackie Kircher, and Pat Bolger.

Early Escanaba Days

Community Strived For Culture Long Ago

—BY JOHN P. NORTON

Back in the days when Escanaba was a struggling young city, on the edge of the great northern wilderness, there was an element of culture in this community that expressed itself in many ways.

In earlier years it was a custom, throughout the nation, for literary societies, debating clubs, chautauque circles and similar organizations, in even the smallest communities, to observe the anniversaries of either the birth or death of artists, poets, statesmen and other famed figures. These "observances" took the form of programs in which the works of those honored were reviewed and extolled. It is not so many years ago that the people in many communities in Michigan observed the anniversary of the birth of Will Carleton, an immensely popular Michigan poet of his day.

Escanaba, in its early history, may have been far removed from the cultural centers of the land, but the practice was followed here of perpetuating the memory of the nation's great by special observances. This was accomplished by a small group of what would be modernly called the "intelligentsia" of the town, with the cooperation of the public schools.

As an instance of this practice on the anniversary of the birth of Henry W. Longfellow, famed American poet, on Feb. 27, 1884, both the Chautauque Circle of the town and the public schools, presented "Longfellow" programs. Details are not provided in the Iron Port of that day as to the program arranged by the Chautauque Circle, but complete details were carried of the memorial programs presented in the schools.

One program was presented by the high school and first grammar departments, under the direction of Helen Stone and Kate Keating, teachers. While another program was offered by the second grammar department, Miss Ella Killian teacher.

The high school—first grammar program follows: Music, Mamie Dolan; Biographical sketch, Mamie Ellsworth; The Legend of the Cross Bill, Ida Lott; Home of Evangeline, Florence Poole; Music, The Arrow and the Song, M. E. Ellsworth; The Village Blacksmith, James Corcoran; The Fire of Driftwood, Birdie Alliger; The Rahy Day, Marian Tyrrell; Violin Solo, Charles Bouten; Hiawatha's Wooing, Annie Lawrence; Killed at the Ford, Maggie Finnegan; Lady Wentworth, Clara Hamacher; The Children's Hour, Jennie Stephenson; The Old Clock on the Stairs, Belle Blake; The Bridge, Mamie Dolan; The Secret of the Sea, Katie Dineen; The Reaper and the Flowers, May Flemming; The Lover's Errand, Marian Tyrrell; The Wreck of the Hesperus, Bartley Cahill, closing with The Psalm of Life, by the class.

The poet's birth, two years after his death, by the second grammar department follows: The Day is Done, Flora Roemer; An Afternoon in February, Francis Handy; Maidenhood, Aggie Forshar; Hiawatha's Hunting, Mamie Morton; Resignation, Mertie Maybee; The Old Clock on the Stairs, Jesse Owen; Castle Builders, Lucy Denton; The Reaper and the Flowers, Sarah Wellman; The Builders, Carrie Roemer; Song, Excelsior, by the class; The Wreck of the Hesperus, Walter Power; The Bridge, Garcie Taylor; It is Not Always May, Wallace Van Dyke; The Children's Hour, Maggie McLean; Hiawatha's Childhood, Nellie Carroll; Day-Dawn, Louisa Trudell; The Village Blacksmith, Joe Duranceau; Paul Riviere's Ride, Madge Pool; The Psalm of Life, Frank Barth; Three Friends, Flora Korten; Excelsior, Clinton Oliver; The Quadroon Girl, Gusta Buckholtz; Arrow and Song, Harry Farrell; Song, The Bridge, by the class; Two Angles, Etta Tyrrell; Rainy Day, Bert Young; Union, Katie Buckholtz; Twilight, Caddie Oliver and, Composition, Longfellow, Ella Hutton.

Former Resident Is Stricken Yesterday

Frank Lequia, 42, a former resident of Escanaba, died at 9 a. m. yesterday at Michigan City, Indiana, where he has made his home for several years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lequia of 1012 Fourth avenue south, and left Escanaba about 20 years ago. Surviving are his wife and family at Michigan City, two brothers, Joseph and Edward of Escanaba, and his parents, also of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Lequia, Joseph and Edward will leave today or tomorrow to attend the funeral services to be held in Michigan City Tuesday morning.

Van Meer

Folks at Church, Bear Calls Van Meer—While Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson and children were absent from home attending church at the local Baptist chapel, a bear visited their home, ripped the screen off a bed room window and reaching in messed up the place considerable. He pulled the curtains, yanked the table cover and tipped over other articles. The Johnsons think that in returning home they frightened the animal away.

Work of hauling gravel from the new pit at the T. N. Belfry farm across from the VanMeer schoolhouse is under way.

The new chapel on the corner at the Percy road is coming along nicely and will be ready to use before winter sets in.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Berry attended the Health Unit dinner and meeting at Munising Tuesday evening. Jerry Berry and Tom Thorne accompanied them and roller skated at the rink there.

Mary J. Richer
And Lt. Wertz
Wed at Chapel

Autumn flowers in shades of yellow and orchid, arranged with tall white candles graced the altars of the post chapel at Columbia Army Air Base, Columbia, South Carolina, for the wedding on Thursday, September 14, of Mary Jane Richer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Richer of this city, and Lt. Donald W. Wertz, son of Mrs. Faye Wertz of Sioux City, Iowa.

The double ring service was solemnized at 7:30 o'clock in the evening by Chaplain Aquinas Brinker. The traditional bridal procession and recessional and bridal selections, including "I Love You Truly" were played by the chapel organist.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Anna Mae Gallagher of this city, a school-mate, who was maid of honor. Lt. Wertz' best man was Lt. Fred Welke.

The bride wore a dressmaker suit of gold shade with brown accessories and a corsage of orchids. Her maid of honor wore a brown dressmaker suit with olive green accessories and a shoulder bouquet of yellow tea roses.

Mrs. Richer, mother of the bride, wore teal blue with black accessories and yellow tea roses formed her corsage.

White flowers in an artistic arrangement centered the table for the wedding supper which was served for twelve at the Columbia Hotel.

Lt. Wertz and his bride are now at home at 2920 Devine street, in Columbia.

The bride attended Mount Mary College and Milwaukee State Teachers' College. Lt. Wertz is a graduate of Morningside College, Sioux City, where he received his degree in business administration.

Garden

School News
Garden—Pupils of the grades have organized in 4-H work. Twenty three girls have formed a sewing club and call themselves "Victory sewers" with Nancy Guertin, president; Helen Berg vice-president; Joyce Seadow secretary and Nancy Pilon treasurer. Mrs. Roland Boudreau is their leader.

The boys handcraft club has 25 members who will be guided in their work by Miss Eda Anderson and Mrs. Evelyn Bradley. For their president they chose John Thimmes, vice-president, Paul Gauthier; secretary, Warren Faubert and treasurer John Moran.

No sessions were held in the grade and kindergarten schools Friday as teachers made visits to outside schools.

Notice to Parents
Children of pre-school age must not be sent with older children for care and entertainment during school hours. With 106 pupils in the grade rooms to be tutored, teachers have more than enough responsibility to cover the curriculum and outside disturbances must detract from the success of all the children. For the information of those who do not know, children may not be sent to school until over five years old and then there is a place properly equipped for their induction into school life, namely the kindergarten room.

Heretofore, this problem, which is not entirely new, was easy to cope with, for pupils could be sent home with their charges, but consolidation has changed that. Nevertheless those mothers who are too tired, or indifferent to discharge their rightful obligations to their off springs, will be confronted with the refusal of teachers to accept this unwarranted responsibility.

Miss Hendrickson
Is the Bride of
Paul Braucht

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. William Hendrickson of the marriage of their daughter, Elaine, to Paul Braucht, of Jersey Shore, Pa.

The wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, September 13, at five o'clock in Bethany Lutheran church, with Dr. C. Albert Lund solemnizing the service.

A wedding dinner was served for immediate family members at the Chicken Shack. The couple is living in Escanaba.

Prior to her marriage the bride was employed by the Michigan Bell Telephone company. Mr. Braucht is stationed here with the United States Coast Guard.

WE,
the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

A 62-year-old Jersey judge was featured in a New York newspaper the other day, not as you might expect for some brilliant legal decision, but because the dignified gray-haired jurist remarked in court that he had taken on the family washing as one of his war-time extra jobs.

It seems the judge's family used to have a cook, an upstairs maid and a chauffeur to do the work connected with an 18-room house. But they all switched to war jobs, and the judge said he would pitch in and help his wife with the housework.

He took the family washing as his regular job and usually helps with the cooking of dinner and with the dinner dishes.

For all the willing spirit women have shown in taking on men's jobs during the manpower shortage, you seldom hear of a man taking over a woman's job because of the womanpower shortage.

Yet all over the country women with large families and large houses to keep up have lost their servants or their occasional help.

And most of those women have had to assume all of the burden of such work themselves. Of course, the man of the house might help with the dishes occasionally, if he were in the right frame of mind. But as for taking on some specific household jobs to be done regularly—that never occurred to the average man.

Deserves Credit
He just said, "I wish you didn't have to work so hard, honey," to his wife. Or he said magnanimously, "Just let things go—what's the difference?" But he didn't jump in and assume part of the responsibility for keeping the home running smoothly.

The New Jersey judge, therefore, deserves a lot of credit not only for pitching in to help his wife meet the household help shortage, but even more for not being ashamed to say he does housework after he leaves the courtroom.

More men would do what the judge is doing if they didn't feel there was something degrading about a man's helping his wife with the work of keeping a house and family going.

Hunters Swarm Over Stump Lake
Hunters early Wednesday morning, amidst rain opened a picturesque waterfowl season by swarming over the marshes at the Stump Lake in Hermansville and reported fair success in the opening of the 1944 waterfowl season.

Hunters from all parts of the county and neighboring communities started things off at 6:11 a. m. and the noise was heard continuously until 8 o'clock. Hunters from this locality were extremely enthusiastic over the duck season this year due to the appearance of many waterfowl on the lake. The lake, which for the past few years has been mediocre for hunting, was the scene of heavy shooting this morning, due to the immense amount of the waterfowl.

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-256: Elsie J., aged 33, should be a lesson to all wives.

"Soon after we were first married 18 years ago, I became pregnant," she mournfully reminisced.

"But my husband didn't want any children and insisted that I have an abortion. My mother also thought I was too young to have children so she sided with my husband."

"Under their combined arguments, I surrendered. But during the past five years I have noticed that my husband has grown disinterested in me."

"I think if we had children, we'd be much closer together. But I have not been able to get pregnant again. A specialist told me last week that the abortion caused inflammation and narrowing of my tubes until I would probably never be able to have a baby."

"Dr. Crane, I feel terrible. I want a child so badly. Would you recommend that I adopt one?" But my husband is opposed to that."

Diagnosis
It is not uncommon for infection to develop following an abortion. The inflammatory process may extend into the Fallopian tubes.

They may then become so thickened that the narrow opening into the womb is too small to admit the passage of the fertilized ovum.

A tubal pregnancy may thus develop, or a woman may be completely sterile.

Don't make the illogical generalization that a tubal pregnancy means a woman must always have had an abortion earlier. This is one of many laws that doesn't necessarily work both ways.

Dangers of Abortion
When a young wife has the chance to bear a child, she better take it. Thousands of women have grieved for many years because of a foolish early abortion which prevented their ever becoming pregnant again.

Best! A husband may complain that he doesn't like babies. He may rudely tell his wife he doesn't want his home cluttered up with squalling brats.

But you must learn to ignore such excuses, for they are usually demolished when the baby arrives. Most men are quite delighted with their children, especially after the latter arrive and begin to wind the adults around their little fingers.

You wives must realize that one of the best forms of insurance for a permanently happy marriage is a group of youngsters. Set your goal at three or four, for if you don't have three, there will be no "middle" child in your family, and you will never fully understand child problems until you know the personalities of the oldest, the youngest and the middle or in-betweeners.

Men Are Illogical
Husbands are often very illogical. They will boldly exclaim that they don't want any children. They may demand that you have an abortion.

Many sweet wives, in their desire to please their husbands, will take seriously their brash talk by their men folks.

Don't do it! When you are 45 or 50 your husbands may then tell you they want a divorce so they can marry a younger girl who can give them children.

I'm not exaggerating. I get letters constantly from broken hearted wives past 45, who are in this dental situation. It does no good then to point out to your

Today's Recipes

A very good recipe for citron preserves has been received from Mrs. Hulle Dalgord of Fayette, in answer to a request which appeared in the department recently.

Citron Preserves
Slice citron and peel. Remove seeds, then cut in cubes. Take three quarts of citron, put in kettle, cover with water and boil until crystal color. Then add one large can crushed or sliced pineapple. If sliced pineapple is used, cut in cubes before adding it to the citron. Add five cups sugar and boil ten minutes. Put into sterilized jars and seal.

Two pounds of raisins or three lemons, sliced, may be used in the place of pineapple.

HONOR ROLL
IS COMPLETED5 Panels Have 1,050
Names, 55 Yet To Be Put On

Construction of the Schoolcraft county honor roll on the Swanson Brothers property between the First National bank building and the Brault building which was interrupted by rain Thursday was completed Friday.

The five panel board contains 1,050 names. According to Roy Anderson, commander of the American Legion post which is the principal backer of the project, there are some 55 names to be added.

Organizations that have so far contributed financial aid to the project are: American Legion Post No. 83 and its Auxiliary, Catholic Order of Lady Foresters, Good Will Club of Maple Grove, Mom's club, Agnes Rebekah Lodge No. 159, Knights of Columbus, Mary C. Watt Guards and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers No. 377. Sylvan S. Rosenbaum of Kalamazoo also made a contribution. According to Anderson, all contributions are not in yet.

There are many names that have not been turned in to the American Legion Auxiliary, Anderson said. He urged all persons knowing of servicemen whose names do not appear on the board to get them to Mrs. Grace McLaughlin on Range street in order that the board can be made complete as soon as possible.

What Would You Do With Hitler?

The best answer to the above question was submitted by a 12 year old girl, Miss Joan Sheehan. Her answer follows:

To punish Hitler for his sins against the world I would make him visit the scenes of his crimes viewing the suffering of the people and the lands he has laid to waste, the broken homes he has caused, the orphans he has left to face the world alone, the maimed, the crippled and the blind, the battlefields with their white crosses and let the people of the countries he has ruined be his judge.

Congratulations, Miss Sheehan. A check for $5 will be sent to you today so you can add to your collection of war stamps.

IRON MOUNTAIN TIPS ESKYMOS

Fourth Quarter Drive Is Climaxed By 7-6 Decision

Iron Mountain, Sept. 23 — The Iron Mountain high school football team squeezed out a 7 to 6 decision over the Eskymos of the Escanaba high school this afternoon before a large crowd of fans.

For more than a half of the game, the Eskymos held command of the battle, took a 6 to 0 lead and appeared headed for victory. The Mountaineers gained strength in the third quarter, however, and drove to victory in the final period as a result of two nicely executed passes from Pucci, Mountaineer halfback.

Escanaba had control of the ball throughout most of the first two periods and was knocking at the goal line twice before they finally shoved the ball across the payoff stripe.

The Escanaba touchdown, however, was set up by an Iron Mountain fumble on the 12 yard line, the Eskymos recovering. Peterson passed to Wickholm on the eight yard line and then tossed to Dufour into the end zone for a touchdown. A pass for the extra point was no good.

There was no scoring threats in the third period, which was marked by numerous fumbles by both teams.

In the fourth, Iron Mountain recovered Schills' fumble on the Escanaba 30 yard line but Wickholm intercepted a pass to stop this scoring threat.

Following an exchange of punts, Iron Mountain got possession on their own 47 yard line and drove a touchdown in two pass plays. The first was from Pucci to Yuhassay to the Escanaba 33 yard line and the second was from Pucci to Van Laanen. Van Laanen streaked past the Escanaba secondary while Pucci was eluding a swarm of tacklers. The pass was taken by Van Laanen over his shoulders just as he stepped into the end zone. Fontana's kick for the extra point split the bars.

In the remaining five minutes of play, Escanaba tossed a series of passes but failed to make any material progress.

Escanaba made five first downs to three for Iron Mountain, gained only 24 yards net rushing and completed six passes for 105 yards. Iron Mountain gained 51 yards net on running plays and completed three passes for 65 yards. Each team intercepted two passes.

TROJANS STAGE RALLY IN 4TH

Bob Marenger Stars In 13-12 Victory Over Badgers

The St. Joseph Trojans climaxed a determined fourth quarter rally with a touchdown in the final minute of play to defeat Peshtigo, 13 to 12, in the opening game of the season for the Escanaba Parochials here yesterday afternoon.

For three quarters of the game Peshtigo held the advantage over the Trojans, scoring two touchdowns and threatening a third before the tide of battle shifted in the final period.

There was little to choose between the teams until late in the first quarter when Peshtigo started a drive toward the Trojan goal. The quarter ended without any scoring but in the second period the visitors hit pay dirt with a neatly executed pass to Storey who jogged across the goal.

A smash for the extra point was stymied.

Later in the second period Steffen picked an opening and scooted 50 yards after reversing his field to cross the Trojan goal, but Peshtigo was clipping on the play and the touchdown was nullified. The visitors worked the ball to scoring territory, however, and another pass to Storey accounted for a second touchdown. Again a smash at the line failed to convert the try for the extra point.

Late in the third period Peshtigo advanced once more to scoring territory, getting a first down on the St. Joseph five yard line. The Trojans held for downs, however, and the tide of battle shifted at that point.

With Bob Marenger pacing the attack, the Trojans counted their first touchdown mid-way in the fourth quarter, Marenger driving across for the tally. Miron kicked the extra point that ultimately proved the margin of victory.

With only two minutes of play remaining, the Trojans launched another determined drive, with Marenger biting off yardage in sizeable chunks. Marenger scored the winning touchdown in the last minute of play from the two yard line. The try for the point was wide.

The lineups:

R. Marenger FB Behneke
Officials: Gundersman, Bartels, Sullivan, Escanaba.

BUSY BROWNIES STAY IN BATTLE

St. Louis, Sept. 23, (AP)—The St. Louis Browns did it again tonight and stayed in the running in the American league pennant race by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics 3 to 1.

Denny Galehouse went the route for the Browns, giving up 6 hits. Don Black, the Mackmen's starting pitcher who was relieved in the seventh by Jonas Berry, was charged with the loss.

Bowling Ass'n Will Meet Monday Night

The annual meeting of the City Bowling association will be held Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Sawyer-Stoll office and all captains and league officials are asked to attend. Bud Stadel, association secretary, has announced.

The selection of officers will be held at this meeting.

At nine p. m. Monday the organization meeting of the City League will be held at the Arcade alleys. Other league organization meetings scheduled this week follow: Classic league, Tuesday, 8 p. m., Arcade alleys; Major League, Wednesday, 9 p. m., Arcade alleys; Service club league, Wednesday, 7 p. m., Arcade alleys.

The Paper Mill league has already organized for the coming season with Bob Smithwick as secretary. The women's city league also has organized, along with the Elks league.

Yanks Keep Slim Flag Hopes Alive

Cleveland, Sept. 23 (AP)—The New York Yankees kept their faint pennant hopes alive today by taking their second straight from the Cleveland Indians 7-2 before a slim crowd of 2,500 fans.

Rookie Floyd Bevens gained his third triumph of the season, holding the Tribe to five hits. It was not until the eighth inning that the Indians were able to score, tallying twice on Jeff Heath's single with the bases full. Until then Bevens had allowed only two hits. Three Yankee double plays helped the young right-hander out of as many holes.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gundersman

Coach Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers is peeved and plenty because the Chicago Bears have remained mum on the persistent rumor that Sid Luckman, an ensign in the Merchant Marine, would fly west from New York to play with the Bears against the Packers today in Green Bay. Lambeau contends that the Bears should say so if Luckman will be in their lineup so that the Packers would have a fair chance to prepare a defense for him. Lambeau explained that the Packers would play the Bears one way with Luckman out of the Chicago lineup and a different way with Luckman in.

Through the fog of rumors concerning whether Luckman will or will not play against the Packers today probably lies the fact that Luckman himself has been undecided whether he would be available.

If any proof were needed that interest in athletics has not been unfavorably affected by the war, one needs only to take count of the large number of upper peninsula fans travelling to Green Bay today for the traditional Packers-Bears grid fracas. Well over 300 tickets have been purchased here in Escanaba and a number of other fans have made reservations direct to the Green Bay office. The CNW 400 will transport many of these fans to Green Bay, along with other fans from Manistique, Munising, Gladstone and surrounding areas.

TIGERS DEFEAT RED SOX AGAIN

Detroit, Sept. 23 (AP)—Paul (Dizzy) Trout pitched a six-hitter today for his 26th victory of the season as the Detroit Tigers defeated Boston 8 to 2 and eliminated the Red Sox from the American League pennant race.

The victory stretched the Tigers' league lead to a game and a half over St. Louis, pending tonight's game between the Browns and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

Boston, losing its third straight game in the series with Detroit here before a chilly crowd of 14,370, now is nine games behind the Tigers with only eight games left to play.

By winning today Trout equaled the games-won record of his teammate, Southpaw Harold Newhouse, who will face Yank Terry of the Sox in the series finale tomorrow. Each has won 26 games; Trout has lost 12, and Newhouse 9.

Red Cecil, Boston right-hander who started today's game, was the victim of an early-inning Tiger attack that counted seven runs in the first three innings. He gave up seven hits and issued six passes to keep himself in constant trouble.

Singles by Doc Cramer and Pinky Higgins, a walk issued to Dick Wakefield, Jimmy Outlaw's single, an intentional pass to Bob Swift and a single sent four Detroit runs across the plate in the first inning.

Rudy York's double to left field scored two more runs in the second, bringing home Eddie Mayo who had walked and Higgins who had singled.

Three Tiger Errors
When Trout singled and Mayo walked in the third, Cecil was relieved by Clem Hausmann, and Higgins, first to face him, singled to left scoring Trout.

Hausmann was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth and the Tigers nicked George Woods for their last run in that inning as Wakefield singled, went to second as Swift drew his fourth walk of the game, and scored on Joe Hoover's single to left.

Aided by four Detroit double plays, Trout held the Sox scoreless and helpless until three errors by the Tiger infield in the eighth gave the Sox a run without the benefit of a hit. Lamar Newsome's grounder, opening the inning, went through Hoover's legs for a two-base error; Pinch Hitter John Lazor's drive to second was bobbled by Mayo, and Newsome scored on Ed Lake's grounder which Higgins threw wildly to second. A double play, Trout to Hoover to York, averted further trouble.

Bob Johnson opened the Boston ninth with a double to left and scored the final run on Lou Finney's single to center.

Ten years ago today the Tigers clinched the 1934 American League flag and then lost to the St. Louis Cardinals in the World Series. In their drive to win this year's league race and a chance to oppose the Cards again, they have won eight of their last nine games.

A crowd of 30,000 to 50,000 is expected to watch tomorrow's wrap-up of the Boston series, depending on the weather.

able for the game in Green Bay today. He is reported to have said that he knows of no plans to fly from New York to Green Bay for the game. Whether Luckman will or will not be in the lineup makes no difference from an attendance standpoint, despite his obvious crowd attraction. The game will draw a capacity crowd of 24,000 fans, with or without Luckman.

Football fans who are interested in the technique of the T formation, rapidly gaining recognition as a potent weapon in offensive football, can get an eyeful by watching the Bears. They pioneered in this formation and execute it masterfully, particularly when Luckman is quarterbacking the Bears. The Packers appreciate the power of this formation in the hands of the skillful Bears, a fact that accounts in no small measure to the signing of Buckets Goldenberg just a few days before the game. Goldenberg is a veteran of 11 years experience in the Packers lineup, a former field captain of the Bays who knows the T formation from A to Z and who can set up a defense for it if anyone can.

Giants Lose Ninth Game In A Row

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—Truett Sewell gained his 20th victory of the season today, as Pinch Hitter Tommy O'Brien drove in two runs with a single in the 13th inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-4 triumph over the New York Giants. The loss was the Giants ninth straight.

A pair of runs in each of the first and sixth innings against Rookie Ken Brondell gave the Pirates a four run lead, but the Giants came back with a brace of two's in the seventh and eighth to tie the score and send the game into overtime.

Litwhiler Rallies Cards To Victory

Philadelphia, Sept. 23 (AP)—Danny Litwhiler went on a batting rampage against his former teammates to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-2 victory over the Phillies here today.

Litwhiler hit a single, triple and home run, driving in four runs, his 14th homer of the season came in the seventh with two on base. Bud Byerly limited the Phils to six hits in chalking up his second victory.

Johnny Hopp, taken ill before the game, was replaced by Augie Bergamo in the outfield.

BRAVES CRUSH ALGERS, 40-0

Keilmen Show Offensive Power In Season's Opener

Gladstone, Mich.—Displaying a slashing attack that Munising was unable to cope with, the Gladstone Braves rolled to a 40-0 victory over the Alger county eleven in their opening game of the season yesterday at Marble Athletic Field.

Coach Eldon Kell kept his first team in the game less than half the time but it was long enough for them to roll up five touchdowns.

Gladstone scored twice in the first quarter on drives of about 40 yards and in each instance Pullback Kallman crashed over the counter. Haglund place-kicked the extra points and the Braves were in the lead, 14-0.

The Braves added two more within a few minutes in the second period. The first was on a 30 yard drive with Lundmark going over left guard from the four yard line. Haglund made good his third place kick. A few minutes later Haglund intercepted a pass but fumbled it with Sigau recovering on the 30. Lundmark dashed 22 yards and Kallman scored again, this time from the eight without a hand being laid on him. Haglund place-kicked his fourth successive point.

The second team then played the remainder of the quarter and some fifty running was done by Legault and Soderman which carried the ball to the ten yard line when the half ended.

Kallman scored his fourth touchdown early in the third period, driving through from the ten to climax a 60 yard march and the score stood 34-0. Haglund's kicking failed to convert for the first time in the afternoon.

With the second team in again, Young, who played a fifty game at left end, blocked a punt on the 35 and recovered it on the 16. Soderman went to the ten and Legault slashed through for ten and another touchdown to bring the score to 40-0. Soderman's place kick was wide.

Munising made its only sustained drive in the last quarter when they rolled up three successive first downs but the gun ended the game with the ball on Gladstone's 32 in possession of the Alger county seaters.

The Roving Reporter

caution hospital about which I've been writing have taken it like soldiers. For the first 10 days they had to live like animals, even using open ditches for toilets, but they never complained.

At this tent hospital one nurse is always on duty in each tentful of 20 men. She has medical orderlies to help her. In bad weather the nurses wear Army overalls.

But Lieut. Col. Rollin Bauchspies, the hospital commandant, wants them to put on dresses, once in a while, for he says the effect on the men is astounding.

The touch of femininity, the knowledge that a woman is around, gives a wounded man courage and confidence and a feeling of security. And the more feminine she looks, the better.

Only about 100 of the hospital's 700 patients are wounded men. The others are just sick with ordinary things, such as flu, appendicitis, sprains. They've got a whole tentful of mumps, and a few cases of malaria and dysentery.

At the far end of the hospital, behind an evil-looking barricade of barbed wire, is what Col. Bauchspies calls "Casanova Park." Back there are 150 soldiers with venereal disease.

"What's the barbed wire for?" I asked. "They wouldn't try to get out anyhow."

"It's just to make them feel like heels," the colonel said.

The hospital already has handled more than 1000 patients and hasn't lost a one. The doctors run to the nearest stake and knock on wood when they say it. The surgeons have performed more than 125 operations.

There's no red tape about whether a patient is legally entitled to enter the hospital or not. They take anybody who comes—soldier, civilian, Arab, Frenchman, anybody.

The way they ignore formalities when emergency arises is one of the things that have made me feel so warmly toward this battlefront hospital. The other day we were looking at those round-bellied iron stoves half-buried in the ground in each tent.

"What do you burn in them?" I asked Lieutenant Colonel Bauchspies.

"Wood," he said.

"Where do you get the wood?" I asked.

"Steal it," he said.

When you're saving lives you don't requisition and wait; you forage and borrow and even steal if necessary. And nobody stands on rank. Recently Major General Fredendall made an inspection tour thru the hospital. Colonel Bauchspies croaked hoarsely like a frog.

"How did you lose your voice?" asked the General.

"I lost it driving tent pegs," said the Colonel.

"Your guard looks nice," said the General. "Where did they get those new rifles?"

"I haven't told you, sir," said the Colonel. The General smiled. And nodded.

You Can Lead A Horse To Water—

Austin, Tex. (AP)—Cavalry troops who fought in Texas a revolution against Mexico won a major naval engagement.

Sidney Latham, secretary of state, who collects Texas tall tales as a hobby, says he has been unable to verify all the facts but this is about what occurred:

The Mexican fleet sailed into a port and attacked the mainland at high tide. The turn of the tide left the Mexican ships grounded in the shallows. The Texas cavalry charged the ships through the low water and captured every vessel.

Citizenship Cost To Be Increased

The United States Senate has approved a House bill providing that clerks of naturalization courts shall charge, collect and account for the sum of $4 for each declaration of intention, and $8 for each petition for naturalization, according to County Clerk Theodore Ohlen, naturalization clerk for this county.

The bill will not be effective until signed by the President. Until then the present fees of $2.50 for a declaration and $5 for a petition will remain in effect.

No fee is charged for naturalization petitions filed by members of the armed forces.

The above information was received by County Clerk Ohlen from Norris Nuss, Sault Ste. Marie, officer in charge of the Immigration and Naturalization Service there.

Domestic air express totaled $11,850 shipments in the first half of 1944, compared with 721-176 shipments in the similar 1943 period, an increase of 12.5 per cent.

Sealed bids will be received at this office until 5 p. m., Friday Sept. 29th, 1944 for the sale of the following:

IXL Plans Sale Of Its Hermansville Facilities

The Wisconsin Land and Lumber company, known familiarly for many years by its trade brand, IXL, has discontinued its lumber and flooring operations at Hermansville permanently, has already disposed of much of the machinery in its sawmill and flooring mill and is now offering the remainder of the property for sale, G. Harold Earle, general manager, has announced.

Mr. Earle hastened to point out, however, that the future of Hermansville as an important lumbering community is not necessarily dark, explaining that the company proposes to dispose of its remaining facilities, including dry kilns, steam boilers, etc., as a single unit, where they can be utilized as a lumber treatment center for the numerous small, portable sawmills spreading through this area.

"There is a ready market now for all of the lumber produced by portable mills. After the war, however, there will inevitably be a return to specialized marketing of lumber. The portable mill operators will find themselves at a disadvantage unless facilities are available for proper sorting, grading and seasoning of their lumber," Mr. Earle predicted.

"The average small lumber operator cannot provide the facilities required to adequately season lumber in the yards and to separate the lumber in various grades and species. The establishment of dry kilns is prohibitive for small operators.

"We plan to dispose of our facilities at Hermansville with the thought in mind that they can be utilized to fill this gap for a number of portable mill operators in this territory. From an employment standpoint, this operation probably would utilize as many workers as formerly were employed in our flooring mill," Mr.

G. HAROLD EARLE

Earle declared. Further expansion of labor employment at Hermansville is envisioned in the development of the Furlo company, a subsidiary of the Wisconsin Land and Lumber company, Mr. Earle reported. Now employing less than a dozen men, the expansion of the Furlo business after the war presages an employment of as many as 100 workers, he said.

He explained that the Furlo company has passed the experimental stage and that vast expansion is indicated after the war.

Associated with the lumber industry for many years, the Wisconsin Land and Lumber company is winding up its lumbering affairs at Hermansville but is not stepping out of the lumber business entirely, the company executive reported.

Operations will be transferred to Blaney Park, where a tract of 33,000 acres has been developed under a selective logging arrangement. A small sawmill will be erected there and a wood novelty manufacturing plant also is contemplated.

"We are planning some interesting experiments in the field of greater utilization of forest products," Mr. Earle reported. "Under our present system of lumbering, only about 10 to 15 percent of the tree actually is processed into lumber. Half of the tree is left in the woods to start with and is used for fuel but it does seem that ways can be developed to use this product into processed lumber."

CHEAP STEEL SUBSTITUTE
A revolutionary substitute for structural steel columns is stronger and cheaper than steel, light as aluminum, and composed chiefly of concrete. It will conserve iron ore reserves, reduce building costs and be especially useful in rebuilding war-torn cities in Europe.
